Senate Passes Income Tax Reduction Bill

Red Jap-Rule Plans Seen Misconstrued By Byrnes

Likened Proposal To Reich Setup; Held Similar to Balkan Councils

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Staff Writer

Secretary of State Byrnes, in the view of some international authorities, has been in error when he stated that the Russian plan for a four-power control council for Japan was like the plan in Germany.

On two occasions—including a press conference yesterday—Byrnes has said that the council proposed by the Soviet Union for Japan was in general patterned after the control set-up in Germany.

Those who challenge this interpretation of the Secretary say that, actually, the control council that Russia has in mind for Japan would be like those that have been set up in the Balkan countries of Rumania, Bulgaria and Hungary.

Say Directive Would Stand

If they are right, Gen. Douglas MacArthur (or whoever is designated as the American representative) would be president of the four-power control council in Japan, and his word would be final. The American Government's directive to MacArthur on August 29, according to this view, would not be upset.

This directive said that in the control of a beaten Japan every effort would be made, by consultations and by the creation of advisory bodies, to satisfy the principal Allied powers. However, it added, "in the event of any differences of opinion among them the policies of the United States will govern."

The question of a four-power control council for Japan has caused an embarrassing situation to arise in American-Russian relations.

The United States Government some time ago invited Russia and other interested nations to appoint representatives to gather in Washington and set up a Far Eastern Advisory Commission. This commission would take up, among other things, the matter of a control council for Japan.

Suggested Advance Creation

Russia at first agreed but then suggested that a four-power control council be set up in advance of the meeting to create a Far Eastern Advisory Commission. The United States rejected this proposal and set last Tuesday as the day of the meeting.

Now the meeting has been set back to this coming Tuesday, but so far Russia has not accepted the invitation to be represented. She is the only one who has failed to accept, nine others, including the United States, having named their representatives.

Nazis Report 94,000 Died in Soviet Prisons

Berlin, Oct. 24 (AP).—British authorities today quoted German war prisoners liberated by the Russians as saying that of approximately 100,000 Nazi troops captured at Stalingrad barely 6000 are still alive.

The others have died in Soviet prison work camps or in transit home on trains which have 200 to 300 corpses aboard wher they arrived at Frankfurt-on-Oder, the prisoners were quoted as saying.

Capt. J. G. Johnson of Oxford, England, commandant of the Invaliden Strasse transit camp where the bulk of these discharged war prisoners from the east are received, said he believed their reports are "not exaggerated."

Not Hard to Believe

"One can well believe that death rate when one sees the miserable wrecks coming through here at the rate of 2000 per day," Johnson said.

"The Russians are not releasing able-bodied men. They are all sick or incapable of further work. Released women of the Wehrmacht auxiliaries are either pregnant or venerally diseased."

Johnson said some of the prisoners reported they walked all the way back from Russia after escaping from work camps. Many limp into the Invaliden camp daily without shoes, their feet bound in rags.

Four Stalingrad veterans interviewed today had come in pairs on two trains as far as Frankfurt. They estimated that 200 out of 2000 prisoners aboard one train had died, and 250 out of 5000 had died on the other.

As they pulled into Frankfurt,

One More Job For General Marshall

THE MAN who built America's military might and who has laid the plans for America's future military strength is needed today to carry his plans into execution. That man is General of the Army George C. Marshall. His proposal—that universal military training be made the foundation of our national security—has now been formally indorsed by President Truman. It awaits decision by the Congress. The Post believes that congressional doubts and anxieties about universal military training can best be resolved by an assurance that General Marshall himself will conduct the program. The assurance would give to the whole country a firm confidence that the program would be conducted upon a sound, constructive and democratic basis.

General Marshall has inspired in the American people an unchallengeable confidence in his qualities as a military leader. Anyone who has read his report, recently published, knows him to be a master of military operations, with a sure understanding of the underlying principles of international relations. No less clear is the man's deep-rooted devotion to the principles of democracy. George Marshall is no more a militarist than George Washington; and he is no less an architect of the Nation's safety in the perilous new world that was created with the release of atomic energy.

In the light of the contribution General Marshall has made to our victory in the recent past, can we afford to ignore his deep feeling and concern about our future? No American knows so well this Nation's military needs. No American has had so great an opportunity to weigh the value—and the necessity—of the military training program which he has proposed. No American has had comparable experience by which to appraise either the proposal of a large standing army or other methods to secure our national safety.

AMERICA'S MILITARY might was built with great speed. But today it is being torn down with even greater speed. The fact is a cause of grave concern to President Truman, to General Marshall and to thinking citizens in every facet of our national life. In a long speech delivered at the Sportspalast, Berlin, on October 4, 1942, Reichsmarshal Goering held out as encouragement and inspiration to the German people the theory that America would be "too little and too late." Speaking of his European enemies, he said: "They place some kind of hope in the astronomic figures of American armament production." Goering was wrong—thanks to the time bought for us with the lives of our allies. But continuation of our demobilization could lead another Goering to regard America's military power as mere "bluff."

America cannot disregard the counsel of General Marshall. And America cannot, at this crisis in her destiny, dispense with the services of her wisest and most experienced military leader. Despite General Marshall's desire for retirement, despite the justice of his request to be relieved, he should be placed at the head of the universal military training program he has sponsored. His leadership will be a guarantor at once of its effectiveness and of its Americanism.

Gale Explodes Live Mines on British Shores

London, Oct. 24 (AP).—Mountainous seas and 100-mile-an-hour gales washed deadly stray mines ashore over a 75-mile stretch of sea front and flooded holiday towns today in Britain's worst storm in 20 years.

Four mines exploded under the Isle of Wight Cliffs, shattering nearby windows, and another live mine was hurled ashore onto a coastal road near Brighton. The town of Abbotsbury was shaken by a mine explosion.

At least three persons were killed and Channel shipping was paralyzed. Weathermen forecast another 24 hours of gales.

Huge concrete "dragon's teeth," part of the local coastal defenses near Eastbourne, were undermined and tilted as though hit by artillery.

A Coast Guard officer said, "We may find the beaches littered with mines when the seas moderate."

At Hastings, rowboats rescued marooned shoppers and office workers. Water was reported 7 feet deep at a point 30 yards from the normal sea line at Hove.

Tankers Returned

The War Shipping Administration yesterday ordered all tankers of more than 3000 gross tons, about 300 in number, returned to their American owners.

Trade Board Favors Single Naval Academy

A strong indorsement for continued training of midshipmen in a single Naval Academy at Annapolis was presented yesterday to the House and Senate Naval Affairs Committees by the Washington Board of Trade.

In a report forwarded to the committees, now considering plans for future expansion of the Naval Academy, B. M. McKelway, president of the Board of Trade, said a single Naval Academy is "definitely in the best interests of the country."

Answering those persons who believe the academy cannot expand sufficiently in its present site to meet an increase in naval officer personnel, the Board of Trade said the urban development of Annapolis does not hamper further expansion.

The feeling that a Naval Academy on the West Coast would save the country money does not hold water, the report argues.

"Those responsible say that it would not cut Government costs and this conclusion seems reasonable in view of the complete duplication of plant and overhead which it would involve," he report stated.

"It is also claimed that additional Naval Academies would create competition. This, however, may develop into sectionalism and cliques

Compulsory Training Held Antiquated

Program Outmoded By Atomic Bomb, Church Women's Board Declares

The National Board of the United Council of Church Women yesterday said the atomic bomb has antiquated compulsory military training as a defense.

Opposing compulsory training as "contrary to Christian democracy," the board applauded a statement from the floor accusing the military of "putting on a Nazi program."

Mrs. John E. Martin, president of the Michigan Council of Church Women, drew the demonstration when she said:

"These military people backing compulsory training in peacetime are putting on a Nazi program. They are forcing us into it by holding the fear of Russia over our heads."

Urge Atomic Control

The board also unanimously urged international control of the atomic bomb and called for "full public hearings" on the subject.

Meeting in the First Congregational Church, 10th and G sts. nw., the board wound up its afternoon session yesterday by having tea at the White House.

During the resolution-packed afternoon session, the group also urged continued support of UNRRA, called for enactment of Federal anti-poll tax legislation, supported the Full Employment bill, reaffirmed support of the Fair Employment Practices Commission and indorsed a bill calling for a 65-cent minimum wage.

Asks Local Studies

In another resolution the women, representing Protestant churches throughout the country, ruled out future conventions in cities "under conditions in which there shall be racial discrimination."

Members were asked to make local studies of segregation and report to the national board. Today's session will begin at 9:30 a. m.

Other speakers included Margaret Wrong, secretary of the international committee on Christian literature for Africa; Morris Salisbury, director of public information of UNRRA, and Leslie B. Moss, executive secretary of the church committee for overseas relief and reconstruction.

Nylons on Sale At F Street Store— Twice a Week

The Marilyn Bootery is a glutton for punishment.

For the second time in less than a week, the shop at 1344 F st. nw., opened its doors and blithely announced: "Nylons for Sale.."

There were only 90 pairs available but the crowd formed a solid line that equaled last Saturday's. The sale lasted from 10:30 to 11:30 a. m.

Four hundred and fifty pairs were grabbed up by customers who had reserved nylons in the days when such things were dream stuff. They showed up with postal cards sent out by the store and claimed their booty. The other 450 pairs went to the "line" customers.

Down but not out when the stores closed, Meyer Ravitz, owner of the store, promised "more Saturday."

Quisling Shot Upon Rejection Of Wife's Plea

Traitor Stumbles To Death in Rain Of Early Morning

Oslo, Oct. 24 (AP).—Vidkun Quisling, with his wife's appeal rejected by the King, stumbled through murky rain to a traitor's death before a firing squad early today in the dismal execution square of ancient, foreboding Akershus Fortress.

Ten crack riflemen—youths once forced to flee from the Quisling regime and Nazi occupation of Norway—snuffed out the life of the chunky, pallid, 58-year-old puppet Premier at 2:40 a. m. (8:40 p. m., EST, Tuesday).

Only hours before, King Haakon had spurned an appeal from Quisling's wife for a reprieve. Quisling to the last protested he was innocent.

Only three other persons besides the execution squad witnessed the death of the man whose name had become a synonym for traitor—a clergyman, a prosecutor and the officer who commanded, "Fire!"

There was no advance notice that the judgment of the country's highest court was to be carried out. Not even Quisling's family knew. They were told at 9 a. m. that he was dead.

It was not known whether the puppet leader made any last-minute statement. During his three-week trial he hysterically called himself "the savior of Scandinavia," the "martyr of Norway" and in his final plea called himself "Quisling the patriot."

Experts examined him and found him sane. A spokesman intimated that his brain would be removed for study. The body presumably will be turned over to relatives for burial.

Movie Strike Ends, Pickets Are Called Off

Cincinnati, Oct. 24 (AP).—President William Green of the American Federation of Labor announced today the federation's executive council had ordered termination of the 33-week Hollywood motion picture strike and directed "all striking employes to return to work immediately."

(At Hollywood, Herbert Sorrell, strike leader, said all picket lines are being withdrawn immediately. Earlier in the day more than 600 persons had been arrested at Paramount and RKO studios on charges of violating a court order restricting picketing.)

Seek to Fix Jurisdiction

The council also directed that for a period of 30 days the international unions affected make "every attempt to settle the jurisdictional questions involved," and that after the expiration of 30 days, a committee of three members of that group should investigate and determine within a like period all jurisdictional questions still unsettled.

Green's announcement followed by a few minutes a statement to newsmen by Eric Johnston, head of the Motion Picture Producers' Association, that "the strike is over."

...ston's announcement was ...e as he emerged from a four-hour conference with the labor men in which Donald M. Nelson, head of Independent Picture Producers, also participated.

Houston Tie-up Continues

Houston, Tex., Oct. 24 (AP).—A strike of members of the International Longshoremen's Association (AFL) continued to tie up port facilities at Houston today and Port Director J. R. Wait described the shipping loss as "terrific."

He said an immediate problem is the moving out of 300,000 bushels of rice which "must be taken care of at once" or its spoilage will cause a $500,000 loss.

Approximately 500 warehousemen, clerks and checkers of the association are striking for higher wages and 2500 longshoremen refuse to cross their picket lines.

300,000 Cast Strike Ballots At GM Plants

Conferences Make No Progress; Chrysler Vote Slated Today

Detroit, Oct. 24 (AP).—Hourly-rated employes of General Motors Corp. cast ballots today in the biggest strike referendum yet conducted under Government auspices as corporation and worker representatives continued negotiations over a demand for 30 per cent wage rate increases.

The wage conferences apparently made no progress in breaking the stalemate between the corporation and the United Automobile Workers (CIO). The union negotiators, headed by youthful, red-haired Walter P. Reuther, a UAW-CIO vice president, have maintained a 30 per cent wage increase can be paid and the corporation boost its profits by "at least 100 million dollars a year out of post-war earnings; the corporation has asserted no increase can be given without corresponding increases in the cost of its product.

Tabulation Starts Today

The strike vote, among GM's more than 300,000 wage-earners was being cast in union halls, school houses and other places in cities throughout the country where the corporation has plants. Tabulation of the vote will begin here tomorrow with an announcement of the result expected tomorrow night or Friday morning.

Meanwhile, the National Labor Relations Board will take another strike vote tomorrow among the approximately 150,000 Chrysler Corp. employes.

Both General Motors and the UAW-CIO have asserted that today's employe vote undoubtedly would favor a strike. Reuther has emphasized, however, that before a strike can become effective, it must be ordered by the union's international executive board.

Excess-Profit Levy Repeal, Individual Relief Voted

Measure Frees About 12 Million; Goes to Conference For Final Rates

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

The Senate last night by a voice vote passed a $5,788,000,000 tax reduction bill repealing the corporation excess profits tax, scaling taxes on all individuals and freeing some 12 million low-salaried families from any income tax whatsoever.

The completed Senate bill, contrasting with some $5,350,000,000 in reductions voted by the House, now goes to a House-Senate conference committee for a final determination of rates.

Only Major Changes Made

Action came without a record vote after only two major changes in the $5,633,000,000 bill previously approved by the Senate Finance Committee:

1. On motion of Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio), the Senate approved repeal next July of 70 million dollars in 1941 excises on sporting goods, gas, oil and electric appliances, business machines and photographic apparatus. This was sent to conference primarily for "trading purposes." Taft will not press the amendment in conference if the House drops its bid to cut other wartime excises some 535 million dollars next July.

2. On motion by Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, (R., Mich.), the Senate voted to relieve small corporations of some of the excess profits tax on their current 1945 earnings. His amendment would increase the exemption from the profits levy to a minimum of $25,000, and apply the relief retroactively to the year's earnings. It would save some 31,000 smaller corporations an estimated $85,000,000.

Earlier the committee swiftly approved some $5,633,000,000 in tax reductions previously adopted in committee despite outnumbered protests against "excessive" tax slashing.

Outright Repeal V...

Here is what the ... voted:

Outright repeal of the 85½ per cent wartime corporation profits tax on January 1, at a loss to the Treasury of $2,555,000,000. The House had voted a cut in the tax to 60 per cent next year, and outright repeal in 1947.

Other corporate tax reductions ranging from repeal of the capital stock tax and related declared value excess profits tax to graduated reductions in the normal and surtax rates of corporations earning less than $60,000 a year. These added some $379,000,000 in corporate tax relief.

A total of $2,544,000,000 in tax cuts for individuals. First, the Senate followed the House lead in dropping 12 million low-income families from the tax rolls by raising the 3 per cent normal tax exemption to the level of surtax exemptions ($500 for each taxpayer and $500 for each dependent).

Blast Injures 16, Two Seriously, at Fireworks Plant

Havre de Grace, Md., Oct. 24 (AP).—At least 16 persons were hurt, two seriously, by an explosion at the Commercial Novelty Co. plant two miles north of Havre de Grace today.

Manager Archillo Fabricio said the blast occurred in the No. 3 building, where sky bombs, a type of fireworks, were being manufactured. There were about 50 women in the building at the time.

The concern is a branch of the Unexcelled Manufacturing Co. of New York.

Most seriously hurt, both with serious burns, were Elizabeth Sabin, 18, of Havre de Grace, and Edna Cullum. Both were taken to the Havre de Grace hospital.

Fourteen other workers, mostly women, suffered contusions, abrasions and flash burns. They were treated and released.

Merger Is Opposed By Gen. Vandergrift

'Aids Democracy'

College Head Backs 1-Year WarTraining

One year of training for the Nation's youth is necessary to "back up our representatives at the peace table," Robert Livingston Johnson, president of Temple University, said yesterday in an interview here.

Commenting that he was one of 14 educators who advocated compulsory military training months ago when many educators opposed the step, Johnson said that he was "even more strongly convinced" of its necessity now.

He also advocated the training of a certain number of women each year for posts in the services. Selection of women, he said, should be on a much more limited basis, with emphasis placed on securing volunteers.

Johnson

Training of men should apply to all in the 18-to-22 age bracket, to place the youths in posts for which they are best qualified, he said.

Backing President Truman's recommendation to Congress, the Philadelphia educator disputed those who have contended that such a training program would threaten our democracy.

Promote Understanding

"Not only do I think training would be no danger to democracy," he said, "but I maintain it would be of great benefit to democracy. Getting youths together from all walks of life and all parts of the country would help them understand one another.

"A boy who has had experience understanding other points of view will be more interested in government and more ready to accept the responsibilities of citizenship."

Saying that he would not advocate compulsory military training merely to provide discipline and physical exercise, the educator pointed out, however, that the training program would have both advantages.

Hits "Passing Fads"

He emphasized, however, that the training should not be "padded with educational ideas currently in vogue and passing fads."

He said he did not think that the use of the atomic bomb altered the need for training, except to stimulate scientists to find means of combating the bomb.

"Next time," he pointed out, "we will not have the time to raise and train an army as we did in World Wars I and II."

"I believe a democracy should have a strong, well-trained army of citizens ready to defend itself," he said.

He emphasized the word "citizen."

"A professional army is not as healthy for a democracy as a citizens' army," he said.

He also would continue ROTC to provide an opportunity for qualified trainees to secure commissions.

Cites Marine Corps' Pioneering Role in Amphibious War

By Mary Spargo
Post Staff Writer

The lead taken by the Marine Corps in developing amphibious warfare was cited yesterday by Gen. A. A. Vandegrift, Leatherneck commandant, as a strong argument against merging the armed services.

In testimony before the Senate Military Affairs Committee, Vandegrift ranged his famed fighting corps alongside the Navy in opposing proposals to unify the armed forces under a single cabinet chief.

As far back as 1921, the general asserted, the Marine Corps realized that an oceanic war with Japan was inevitable and began special training and development of weapons to meet the situation.

"The realization that we would inevitably engage in an oceanic war with Japan involving the seizure of heavily defended island bases spurred us to special development efforts which began in 1921 and which are still in progress.

"We conducted training with the fleet and improvised new equipment year after year, although we had little in the way of appropriations to devote to our projects," he told the congressional group bluntly.

Vandegrift insisted that independent research and development on the part of the various armed services, and not unification, would provide a greater degree of preparedness.

So far as development of amphibious weapons was concerned, the general declared, "the Navy was helpful, but was naturally preoccupied with other aspects of the Pacific problem.

"Elsewhere," he added, "there was no real recognition that amphibious operations as a field of military activity even existed nor any appreciation of its vital application to global war."

Credit for the development of the amphibian tank, amphibian tractor and the Higgins landing craft was claimed for the Marines by their commandant.

The Marine Corps, said Vandegrift, caused the first workable amphibian tank to be built in 1924, and it was only the persistence of the Leathernecks, he said, which caused the adoption of the Higgins design for landing craft.

"We persevered in our special field and when, at long last, it finally became clear to all that amphibious action was to be the key to World War II, we shared our doctrine, our know-how and our equipment.

"We undertook the amphibious training of many Army divisions, assisted in the establishment and conduct of amphbious training centers and supplied experienced staff officers for newly created amphibious forces in every part of the world.

which should have no place in a national institution like the Navy," the report pointed out.

Emphasizing that the quality of the educational institution is the best argument in favor of keeping the Naval Academy under central control, the Washington Board of Trade report concluded:

"Over a period of a hundred years the Naval Academy at Annapolis has served the Nation outstandingly well under the acid test of war. It has been the mission of Annapolis not to produce men of high education, but of high character and integrity whose sole duty is devotion to country.

"The means by which the present Naval Academy has accopmlished this mission of molding character to the Navy pattern are not tangible. There are influences present at the institution in Annapolis, having their origin in the far distant past. They cannot be transferred to a new site like plants and fixtures."

The Board of Trade report was based on the unanimous recommendations from its military and naval committee, headed up by Col. E. G. Bliss.

None of the prisoners knew what had become of Hungarian or Italian prisoners or members of the Spanish Blue Division and other satellite troops captured by the Russians at Stalingrad.

Training Seen As Education Boon in U. S.

Two presidents of Washington universities yesterday asserted that a well run compulsory military training program can be an educational boon to the Nation.

Disagreeing with educators who claim Government is at war with education because it proposes a year of military training for 18-year-olds, Dr. Paul F. Douglass, American University chief, said such training could be expected "to increase college attendance."

President Cloyd Heck Marvin of George Washington University said that military training which includes scientific, governmental, and technical education "can make a contribution to our national welfare."

He said he would oppose, however, a year's program of training limited to close order drill and tactical problems.

Dr. Douglas predicted boys would see the value of advanced education if given a year of military training away from home.

He objected, however, to a policy of drafting 18-year-old boys out of college now, while "America's international policy and plans to spend money for peace are not yet clear.

Dr. Harry Byrd, president of Maryland University, which has a Reserve Officers Training Corps in peacetime, refused comment on the present issue, as did the Rev. Dr. Lawrence C. Gorman, president of Georgetown University.

UDC Leader Holds Hope For Wounded

Hope for ultimate recovery of many of the men wounded in World War II was held out yesterday by the daughte rof a Confederate officer now attending the three-day fiftieth annual convention of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, Virginia division, in Alexandria.

She is Mrs. James A. Scott of Lynchburg, the former Anne Norvell Otey, whose father, Col. Kirkwood Otey, commanded the Eleventh Virginia Regiment under Gen. James Longstreet in the War Between the States.

Colonel Otey was seriously wounded in the hip at the Battle of Gettysburg and had to use crutches for 11 years following the war, but with treatment of one of the best doctors of his time and determination to overcome his handicap, he was finally able to walk unassisted, Mrs. Scott said.

At the convention Mrs. Scott was chosen secretary, took the minutes of the meeting and has since made th ehistorical and educational activities of the division her life work. Sh ehas been president of the chapter in Lynchburg, named for her father, 10 times and is chairman of the Lee Chapel and Mausoleum at Lexington.

Silver Spring Residents 80% Registered

More than 80 per cent of the Silver Spring residents are registered voters, a survey by the Montgomery Charter committee revealed yesterday.

The check of the county is being made in the campaign to increase registration figures. All new residents must file their declarations of intention to vote before November 5 in order to ballot in the 1946 elections.

The old section of Takoma Park shows 70 to 75 per cent of the residents as voters, but on Takoma Park precinct showed less than half of the residents rgeistered. The majority of Chevy Chase and Edgemoor residents are voters, the committee said.

An unusual number of rural people, though long time residents, do not exercise their voting rights, the survey showed.

Political Use Of Lend-Lease Arms Deplored

By the Associated Press

The United States has asked the British and Dutch to take the American label off lend-lease arms they use to put down restive natives in Java and Indo-China, Secretary of States Byrnes disclosed yesterday.

This country objects to use of lend-lease munitions in situations having political connotations, he told a news conference.

This policy of objection applies everywhere, including South America, he asserted. Venezuelan revolutionists used lend-lease equipment in their recent successful uprising.

Byrnes virtually conceded there is little the United States can do about the political use of lend-lease arms except to try to cover up their origin.

The request for the removal of the United States emblem, Byrnes said, does not mean that countries using the arms in political situations will be asked to pay for them.

Nothing Can Be Done

Other officials said that the guns, tanks and planes in the hands of various Allied armies over the world are beyond the control of the United States and virtually nothing can be done to prevent their employment in any way the leaders of those armies choose.

Byrnes was asked who actually owns this lend-lease equipment. He said that was a question he could not very well answer at the moment because there were about three different master lend-lease agreements with different countries which make different provisions for the ownership of military equipment supplied to foreign governments to fight the Axis.

The view of some top officials here was that whatever the legal technicalities involved the determining factor in the current revolutionary situations is physical possession of the arms.

Regarded As Liberal

Byrnes remarks did not imply any disapproval of the new Venezuelan regime. Officials here are inclined to regard it as liberal and acceptable for recognition by the United States.

While Byrnes was holding his news conference, two Republican Congressmen were calling on President Truman to report they had observed indications on a recent trip aboard that the French had used lend-lease supplies in Lebanon and Syria, where disturbances occurred several months ago.

The two, Representatives Frances Bolton of Ohio and Karl Mundt of South Dakota, told reporters they had expressed their view to the President that "there should be an accounting."

Bids for constructing the new $160,000 Lucy Slowe elementary school building at 14th and Jackson sts. ne. will be received at 2 p. m. Monday in the District Building Board Room. Bids for a $250,000 eight-room addition and auditorium in the Kimball School, 34th st. and Ely pl. se., will be received at the same hour on Wednesday.

29th Signatory Of Charter Makes It Law

By the Associated Press

The United Nations World Security organization became a fact at 4:45 p. m. (Eastern Standard Time) yesterday when Secretary of State Byrnes signed a protocol of deposit of ratifications.

Byrnes used two pens to sign the document.

The signing followed the deposit of ratification documents earlier in the day by Poland, the Ukranian and White Russia Republics, and finally by the Soviet Union.

These four ratification documents brought the total of nations completing action on the charter to the required 29.

In a statement, Byrnes said:

"The United Nations charter is now a part of the law of nations.

"This is a memorable day for the peace-loving peoples of all nations."

Byrnes pledged that the United States "will do our utmost" in conjunction with the other united nations to preserve world peace.

Among the witnesses at the signing were William Benton, assistant secretary of state for cultural and public relations, and Archibald MacLeish, who held that office until a few months ago.

The required number of charter signatories was reached shortly after 3 p. m., when Fedor Orekhov, First Secretary of the Soviet Embassy, delivered the ratification instruments of Russia and the White Russian and Ukrainian Republics at the State Department.

Poland's document was delivered this morning and it was announced that the Egyptian instrument had been deposited Monday.

Byrnes said he woul dgive one of the pens to former Secretary of State Cordell Hull, often called the father of the United Nations. He might give the other one to President Truman, he said, but added that he hoped to talk the Chief Executive into permitting him to keep it himself.

Skunk Lands, Gets Marine Well in Hand

An Arlington marine did a strip-tease in record time on the front porch of his home Tuesday night while neighbors egged him on to even greater haste.

All the marine had done was say: "Here kitty, nice kitty!" to a skunk.

The skunk, who apparently did not want to be confused with a cat, showed his anger in a manner peculiar to skunks.

The marine, Pfc. Hugh McCaffrey, jr., 21, is the son of Justice of the Peace Hugh McCaffrey, 1722 North Adams st. He had left his home to report to the Navy Department for guard duty when he encountered the cat—skunk.

McCaffrey is eligible for discharge from the Marine Corps in November. Yesterday he wondered just how the supply office was going to feel about accepting his skunk suit.

"The dry cleaners won't take it," he said. "I wonder what they'll say when I try to tell that to the Marines."

38,000-Ton Carrier Randolph Arrives At Baltimore Port

Baltimore, Oct. 24 (AP).—The aircraft carrier Randolph, largest ship ever to enter the Baltimore harbor and the Navy's newest vessel, Herbert J. Thomas, a radar picket, both docked in Baltimore today to vie for attention at Saturday's Navy Day celebrations.

The huge 38,000-ton carrier, which sank over three times her weight in Jap ships, had to be stripped of most of her antiaircraft weapons, approximately 600,000 gallons of fuel oil and gasoline and all but five of her planes so she could make the trip up the Chesapeake Bay from Norfolk.

Her usual crew of 3100 officers and men stayed on board.

The Herbert Thomas, also hailing from Norfolk, is the flagship of Capt. F. J. Bell of Baltimore and carries some radar equipment which still is top secret.

Other Navy Day warships due in Baltimore tomorrow are the heavy cruiser Canberra, the destroyer Gyatt, the destroyer-escort Solar and the submarines Triante and Flying Fish.

Shelton Flees Marshal's Office Just Before Virginia Hearing

FBI Enters Search For 'Mystery Man' From Arlington

Jay Paul Shelton, Arlington "mystery man," who has been in and out of legal toils all year, yesterday "disappeared" in Richmond, Va. while awaiting a hearing on auto theft charges.

Shelton, 27-year-old former automobile dealer, wha was acquitted last month on charges of attempted bank robbery and abduction, was taken yesterday from the Federal Reformatory in Richmond to the Postoffice Building at Tenth and Main streets for a hearing on his removal to Washington to answer charges of motor theft.

As Shelton waited for the hearing, to be held before U. S. Commissioner Melvin Fleggenheimer, he told officials he would like to write a letter.

According to deputy U. S. Marshal H. D. Hammer, Shelton, who was carrying a hat and briefcase, left both in the marshal's office, slipped quietly out of the back door of the room, and vanished.

Hammer explained that the marshal's offices are in the center of the Postoffice Building, and that Shelton could have left by either a front or rear door. Local and State police were immediately alerted in the search to apprehend the dapper, mild-mannered Shelton, and Marshal Hammer said that the FBI also had been called in on the case.

Shelton was last seen wearing a grye-blue double breasted suit and dark tan shoes. He had no hat.

First Arrest in January achieved notoriety last January when he was arrested by Arlington police on the charge of kidnaping a 14-year-old East Falls Church girl and of attempting to hold up a local bank. An Alexandria jury deliberated 1 hour and 46 minutes before returning a not guilty verdict on both counts in September. During the year he also has been arrested by Baltimore authorities on charges of violating the National Stolen Property Act, a charge which was later quashed and also has been arrested on three charges of auto theft. Earlier this month Shelton was indicted by a District grand jury on a charge of perjury in applying for a duplicate title to an automobile.

BYRNES

tary Byrnes may have misunderstood or misinterpreted the Russian proposal for a control council for Japan, point to a letter which was published by Izvestia and Pravda. This was a letter which Foreign Commissar Molotov wrote to Secretary Byrnes on October 1.

Reviewed London Proposal

In this Molotov reminded Byrnes that on September 24, at the meeting of the Council of Foreign Ministers in London, he had handed him a memorandum containing a proposal for the establishment of a control council for Japan.

Miolotov said that this council would sit in Tokyo and would consist of representatives of the United States, Great Britain, the Soviet Union, and China "under the presidency of the representative of the United States."

This, it is argued, would be the same arrangement as exists in the Balkan countries. The control councils in Rumania, Bulgaria and Hungary, although having representatives of the Allies, are in each case under the "presidency" of the Supreme Allied Commander. That commander in each case is a Russian, and his word is final in the carrying out of armistice terms.

The men who differ with Secretary Byrnes contend that, according to the wording of Molotov's letter, General MacArthur would hold a position in Japan similar to that held by Russian generals who head up control councils in the Balkans.

At any rate, the arrangement in Germany is utterly different from that in the Balkans. In Germany there is no civilian government as there is in Japan. The Allied Control Council in Germany is made up of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Marshal Zhukov and officers representing Britain and France. There is no such thing as a "presidency" of the council; the chairmanship rotates among the four top men.

Each Has Own Zone

Each of the powers in Germany has a zone of its own, and is supreme in that zone. There have been efforts to achieve some harmony in carrying out the Potsdam Declaration, but from all indications the sysetm in Germany has been a historic flop.

The question of Russia's proposal for a control council in Japan was brought up at a press conference held by Secretary Byrnes on October 10, after his return from London. He was asked if the Russian plan called for the removal of General MacArthur as supreme commander.

Byrnes said that, no, the Russians did no thave that in mind. The Russian plan for Japan, he added, would in general follow the plan of the control council in Germany.

Again yesterday Byrnes was asked about the Russian proposal. A reporter wanted to know whether the proposed control council for Japan would be on the pattern of the German council or the pattern of the Balkan councils.

Reaffirms His Impression

Secretary Byrnes recalled the statement that he made when he returned from London. According to his understanding, he said, the Russian proposal for Japan was a control council such as existed in Germany.

Having made that statement on his return fro mthe London conference, Byrnes concluded, he would not make any statement at this time.

Foreign Commissar Molotov, in his October 1 letter to Secretary Byrnes, made this argument for a control council:

"The Soviet government considers that while the war situation existed and the Japanese armed forces had not yet been disarmed, there was justification of the concentration of all the functions for the cnotrol of Japan in the hands of the Allied commander in chief.

"However, now that the war period has passed, there have arisen before the Allies tasks chiefly of a political, economic and financial character for whose decision it is essential to establish an Allied organ through the medium of the four powers who played the decisive role in the defeat of Japan."

Molotov said that the Big Four would put into effect in Japan "an agreed policy and assume joint responsibility." Insisting that the control council come before the setting up of a Far Eastern Advisory Commission, the Russian foreign minister said that "a delay in this decision will create appreciable difficulties."

Sen. Taylor Urges Republic Of All Nations

By the International News Service

Proposals to Congress of new forms of life for the atomic age were topped yesterday by Senator Glen H. Taylor (D., Idaho), when he introduced a Senate resolution calling upon all nations to join under one flag in a world republic.

Taylor indicated in the resolution aimed at eventual establishment of a republic of nations that he sought to keep mankind from destroying itself with the "new and terrible" weapons of the day.

His resolution would have the United States Government seek through the United Nations' organization to enlist other world states under a flag which would be supreme to all other national flags and to which all would surrender sovereignty.

Abolish Armaments

All states in the world republic he proposed would abolish armaments and outlaw military training and conscription.

"The atomic bomb and other new and terrible instruments of warfare," the resolution said, "make it possible that most of mankind and civilization itself may be destroyed should the world become involved in another war."

The President of the United States would be directed by the Taylor resolution to instruct American representatives on the United Nations Council to propose international agreements to combine all nations into one republic with an international police force and universal suffrage.

Meanwhile, the Senate Military-Commerce Subcommittee studying national scientific foundation proposals heard Prof. L. C. Dunn, chairman of the Columbia University zoology department, propose that a Cabinet post be created not only to direct the foundation but to handle all scientific matters.

Proposes Cabinet Member

"It seems to me," said the biologist, "that science is at least as important a public matter as agriculture or commerce or the postoffice, and needs the power and responsibility attaching to Cabinet rank."

Dunn suggested that such a new Cabinet member be called the "secretary of scientific research and development." He said the voice of such a Cabinet officer "should be heard in the making of national and international policy."

Yearly Sessions Of Mission Group This Weekend

The annual conference of the executive committee of the International Union of Gospel Missions will be held at the Central Union Mission, 613 C st. nw., on Saturday, Sunday and Monday. The group represents more than 200 missions throughout the United States and Canada.

Washington was selected as the site of the conference so that its members could join with the Central Union Mission in celebrating its sixty-first anniversary. A number of special anniversary features have been included in the program.

Among program features will be a victory rally for servicemen and women at the mission on Saturday evening, special services in all Protestant churches Sunday morning, a mass meeting Sunday afternoon, and the annual banquet of the mission at the Mayflower Hotel on Monday at 6:30 p. m.

Belgrano to Be McNutt's Adviser on Finances

By Jerry Kluttz

DIARY NOTES: Frank Belgrano will be appointed financial adviser to the Philippines by High Commissioner Paul McNutt. He's a former national commander of the American Legion and he's associated with the Bank of America in California . . . Assistant Treasury Secretary Herbert Gaston is being considered for appointment as chairman of the board of the Export-Import Bank. Leo T. Crowley also is a possibility . . . James W. Angell of FEA, will represent this country on the Allied Reparations Commission for Germany. His deputy is D. M. Phelps of the State Department. . . The Surplus Property Administration has asked Congress for 191 million dollars to expand disposal agencies which must sell 32 billion dollars worth of surplus war properties during this fiscal year.

KLUTTZ

STORY: More than 10,000 Navy civilian employes were captured by the Japs when we lost the Phillippines in early 1942. After we recaptured those islands, the Navy sent a team of investigators there to look up the remaining victims and to pay them back salaries for the time they had been imprisoned. To date, $309 salary and 967 death claims have been settled. About 1000 claims are being further investigated as some of the people are suspected of being Jap collaborators. Settlements ranged from $1500 to a Filipino laborer to $18,500 to a master mechanic. More than 20 million already has been paid out. The former employes were paid off by Navy people at one desk and several million dollars were taken back at the next desk in the sale of war bonds. A Navy team is now in Guam, where 2000 former employes are to be paid off and sold war bonds.

TERMINAL LEAVE: The House Civil Service Committee yesterday approved the Barkley bill with amendments which will speed the return of Army and Navy officers to Federal civilian jobs. The bill orders the War and Navy Departments to make lump-sum payments for terminal leave to officers who plan to enter the Federa lcivilian service. The committee added an amendment which would permit the payment of back salaries to these former officers who served voluntarily in civilian jobs while they were on terminal leave. These persons would have had to sign a waiver forfeiting the leave had they gone on the civilian payroll. And those who did sign the waiver are to be paid the terminal leave as the bill would be retroactive. Salary payments from two Federal agencies simultaneously is forbidden by the dual compensation law. A second amendment would allow lumpsum payments to be made to those officers who plan to enter State and municipal work. Chairman Ramspeck plans to call up the bill next week.

MORE NOTES: Chairman Downey of the Senate Civil Service Committee will start hearings Monday on his bill to raise Federal salaries by 20 per cent. The Administration gradually is swinging around to the higher pay principle involved in his bill and an indorsement of 15 per cent for most employes is now forecast. Employe unions may not be heard at the hearing. . . . Commerce Secretary Wallace has asked Congress to give him $4,466,000 to enlarge the business services of his department. Census would get $3,250,000 to make tudies of shifts in population and marketing potentialities. The Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce would get $723,000 to give business firms information on trade outlets, and the Secretary's office would get $494,000 to acquaint business es on enemy technical information.

TROUBLES: The conscientious Federal official has no soft touch in these difficult days of reconversion. New duties and problems arise daily, appropriations are being cut, and critics yap at every decision. Vice Admiral Emory S. Land, the plain-speaking chairman of the Maritime Commission, is merely one of many officials who is sort of overwhelmed by postwar troubles. He says frankly that his agency can't do an efficient job with the available appropriations and that he proposes to contract for the services of private firms to take over laid-up vessels rather than to do it with Marine personnel. "My job," he says, "tigher and harder since V-J Day than it was before, and it is certainly a damn sight less interesting."

ADMIRAL LAND goes on: "We go from a production job to a second-hand clothing store job, to the handling of a surplus commodity, surplus ships. Some 2891 small ships were turned back to us by the Army, Navy and Coast Guard, and you can get a controversy out of anyone of them. Take somebody's lovely yacht and handle disposal on it and you can have some comparison with the job of writing Webster's Dictionary. We have 2891 of them and that takes time and personnel. We have over 2000 more coming from the Army, and I do not know how many more coming from the Navy. How in God's name the military services, with 12 million or 13 million people, can bass the buck onto an organization that had at the maximum 12,000 or 13,000 is more than I can understand, and I lose what little disposition I have. I am a lot older than I used to be. I am war weary."

Byrd Evading GOP Charges, Leaders Claim

Richmond, Va., Oct. 24 (AP).—United States Senator Harry F. Byrds' statement that the Republicans are represented on the electrical boards of all Virginia cities and on 97 of the 100 counties was termed an evasion of Republican charges that Virginia does not have fair and honest election laws, in a statement issued here today by Virginia Republican officials.

The statement, prepared by eLster S. Parsons of Norfolk, Republican candidate for attorney general, and concurred in by Senator S. Floyd Landreth, Republican candidate for Governor, and the Republican campaign committee, asserts that Senator Byrd's claim, made at a meeting of the Democratic State central committee, is not correct.

Not Represented

The Republican statement said in part:

"Faced wit hthe dilemma caused by the Wise County election steal, the Democratic machine met in Richmond. Unied States Senator Harry F. Byrd, father and supreme director of the machine, said that the minority party (meaning the Republican Party) was fairly represented in the political make-up of the local electoral boards in 97 counties and in 24 cities throughout Virginia. What he actually meant was that in these counties and cities that one member of the electoral boards was supposed to be a person identified with the Republican Party.

"Very well, let us assume for the sake of the argument that his statement is correct. What does it all mean? To answer that question, w emust necessarily look at the election machinery in Virginia, how it is created and how it functions.

"The election machinery of Virginia is created by the Democratic machine and that Democratic machine has a voting control over the General Assembly of Virginia. The General Assembly passes all the laws setting into motion the election machinery and the General Assembly, better known as the State Legislature, elects circuit and city courts judges.

Setup Is Reviewed

"These judges, under the election laws, appoint electoral boards composed of three members for every political unit of government in the State of Virginia. Who are these three persons? Two are machine-dominated Democrats and one other person, denominated a Republican, according to the notion of the machine-minded members of the electoral board.

"Senator Byrd and Lieut. Gov. Tuck say this is fair representation. To either one, we direct this question: Who appoints the Republican member of an electoral board and is he the choice of the Republican Party? He is not. He is the choice of the Democratic organization and the appointment is made without consultation, without advice, and oftimes contrary to the wishes of the Republican Party. It is another instance of the deception of the public when this plan is called fair representation."

Cattle Sale Set At Foxhall Farms

Catonsville, Md., Oct. 24 (AP).—Record prices are expected to be offered for five bulls and 35 heifers of the finest Hereford strain to be placed on public sale at Foxhall Farms Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard C. Riggs, who early this year paid $50,000 for the purebred Hereford bull, TT Triumphant 29th, own the animals which are expected to attract bids from breeders of fancy cattle from all sections of the country.

The only previous public auction of Herefords at Foxhall Farms, in 1943, drew an average price of $1152, a record for the Nation and brought o total of $57,000 to the Riggs family.

Two famous Foxhall Farms bulls, Super Domino 19th and White Mount Mixer 2d, sired three of the bulls to go on sale Monday. Bidders also will compete for older heifers carrying calves by Triumphant 29th.

Frost Spurs Completion of Harvest in Va.

Richmond, Va., Oct. 24 (AP)—Frost throughout all but the extreme southern counties of the State has spurred the completion of the snap bean and sweet potato harvest and the cutting of soybeans for hay, the Federal-State departments of agriculture said today in their weekly weather and crop report. Frost damage to pastures and tender crops has been negligible.

Mechanical corn pickers are being used in several counties. Most of the corn is now cut and shocked except in the few localities where corn is pulled or shucked from the uncut stalk, the report said.

In valley counties harvesting of clover seed is continuing, and in Rockbridge County, lespedeza is being cut for seed. Some hay is still being saved, but the Department of Agriculture says that most farmers have in their supply of hay.

Harvest of commercial truck crops is heavy in the Norfolk section, with the digging of sweet potatoes three-fourths finished and the picking of snap beans and lima beans progressing rapidly.

Apple harvesting should be completed this week, the report indicates. Those still unharvested are mostly Staymans and Yorks.

Virginia Truck Tax Revival Seen Arousing Other States

Richmond, Va., Oct. 24 (AP).—Reed I. West, president of the Virginia Highway Users Association, and Charles Ray, director of safety engineering for the Markel Service, today charged Governor Darden with isolationism in his order abolishing reciprocity agreements between Virginia and other States as to the 2 per cent gross receipts tax on motor carriers.

The Governor announcde yesterday that he intended to restore the tax, suspended during the war at the request of Federal authorities. It is the source of approximately $250,000 annually in State revenues.

West said that apparently all seaboard States are willing for the wartime reciprocal agreement to continue, and that Governor Darden's action "will result in arousing ill-feeling towards this State."

Ray said that Virginia's motor transport "cannot survive under the Darden plan of isolation."

"The day those outside license taxes are imposed, Virginia carriers will suspend operation," he said.

Both Ray and West said that the Governor's action was the result of decision reached by him, the State highway commissioner, the director of the Divisiion of Motor Vehicles, and "one member of the State Corporation Commission."

Ray said the statement came in an apparent effort to "swell the present Virginia multi-millions surplus of road money."

West said that business men and taxpayers should consult together before measures are taken which direct affect them. He ascribed the action of the Governor as "a blow against every business interest of the State and against each and every individual citizen to whom, in the last analysis, will be passed any added transportation cost."

A spokesman at the State Corporation Commission said that in 1942 North Carolina carriers used Virginia highways nearly 50 per cent more than Virginia carriers.

Bankers' Clinic Set in Roanoke

Charlottesville, Va., Oct. 24 (Spl.).—A two-day bankers' clinic for the discussion of consumer credit has been scheduled for November 26 and 27 at Roanoke, according to Edwin Hyde, executive vice president of the Peoples National Bank of Charlottesville and chairman of the consumer credit committee of the Virginia Bankers Association.

An estimated 150 members of the association have expressed their intention of attending the clinic, said Mr. Hyde.

Included in the program will be panel discussions by bankers from Virginia and other states on automobile financing, individual banking, the GI Bill of Rights, consumer credit techniques, credit analysis and investigations, and costs, rates and rebates.

O'Conor Hits Va. Truck Tax As Trade Snag

Baltimore, Oct. 24 (AP).—Virginia's 2 per cent gross receipts tax on earnings of motor carriers from Maryland and other States, which was lifted during the war, is going back into effect December 15, Governor Darden told Governor O'Conor today.

Maryland was one of 10 States having motor vehicle reciprocity agreements with Virginia.

Darden explained in a letter to O'Conor that the agreement was only to last until hostilities ended and could not be continued since the tax was a Virginia law. The law allows an exemption on the first $1000 earned by common carriers and on $3500 earnings by contract carriers.

Commenting on the change, O'Conor took a position against "trade barriers which would make difficult the free flow of trade through Maryland." He pointed out that he had already vetoed a bill passed by the 1945 Maryland Legislature, and imposing a similar tax, on the ground that it would harm reciprocal trade with other States.

The Governor said that Maryland had no "retaliatory measures" to invoke but that he was contacting the Council of State Governments to see if any action could be taking on a joint basis with other States.

Virginia had reciprocity agreements with West Virginia, North Carolina, Ohio, Illinois, Delaware, Pennsylvania, Indiana, and the District of Columbia.

Victory Rally, Ball Set in Fredericksburg

Fredericksburg, Va., Oct. 24 (Spl.).—Fredericksburg and the counties of Spotsylvania and Stafford will give an unofficial welcome to their men of ther armed forces and discharged servicemen at a bond rally and ball opening the Victory Loan Drive November 1.

The rally will be staged at Mary Washington College at 8 p.m., featuring a Coast Guard orchestra made up of former members of "name" bands. The ball will take place at 10:30 p. m. at the Elks Home, with the servicemen and discharged veterans of World War II as guests of honor.

Admission to both events will be obtained by the purchase of Victory Bonds.

Mother Jailed, Charged With Deserting Baby

Baltimore, Oct. 24 (AP).—A sobbing 21-year-old mother who pleaded guilty to abandoning her year-old son in a trash barrel, was ordered held for grand jury action today after a hearing before Magistrate George P. Welzant. Bond was set at $500.

Mrs. Josephine Wise of Baltimore, whose infant son, Albert Lee, was found in an alley trash barrel by a soldier, was arrested yesterday as she sipped a soda in a corner drugstore.

Her mother, Mrs. Josephine Norris, told the magistrate she had the child a ther home, and also that she knew nothing about the situation until she recognized the baby's picture in a newspaper last Saturday.

Detective Lieut. Clarence O. Forrest said police had taken no steps to notify the father, Pvt. William Wise, who is stationed at Camp McCoy, Wisc.

Police said Mrs. Wise told them she had been sleeping in parks and in cabins since her disappearance last Friday. She previously had said that she had been married three years.

Another Mother Held

Norfolk, Va., Oct. 24 (AP).—A Corporation Court grand jury will be given the case of a young mother charged with killing a newly born baby in a hotel room here September 29.

The woman said to be from Vermont and to be known as Mabel Rose, Mabel Sands and Mabel Mullins, was ordered held for the grand jury after a Police Court hearing yesterday.

Two College Girls Ill With Polio; Fears Discounted

Farmville, Oct. 24 (AP).—Two students at State Teachers College, Farmville, have been in Medical College of Virginia Hospital in Richmond for the past week, suffering with poliomyelitis, but the president and the physician of the school say they see no cause for alarm.

The requirement of the college that students report to the college infirmary the minute they do not feel well made it possible to isolate these students 12 to 24 hours before they developed fever or showed any other definite signs of the disease.

Both students are girls who live in the Richmond area or who worked in Richmond during the summer.

Dr. Ray A. Moore, college physician, and member of the county board of health, said, "I do not feel that our students here now are in any more danger from this disease than they would be at home or anywhere else in the State."

Dr. J. L. Jarman, president of the college, has written all patrons of the college and included in his letter a full statement from Dr. Moore.

Leonardtown, Md., Oct. 24 (Spl.).—Miss Leah Bradburn, of St. Michael's Catholic High School at Ridge has been named president of the Southern Maryland Mission Catholic Crusade Society for 1945-46.

Others elected are: Vice president, Edelen Gough of St. Mary's Academy, Leonardtown; recording secretary, Cecelia McDonough of the Sacred Heart School, La Plata; corresponding secretary, Martha Stone, St. Michael's High School at Ridge; publicity secretary, Mary Walter of the Notre Dame High School, Bryantown; treasurer, Mary Ellen Williams also of Notre Dame High School; custodian of property, Mary Ida Jameson of the Sacred Heart High School, La Plata; parliamentarian, Thelma Wilkinson of St. Mary's Academy High School, Leonardtown.

$50,000 REA Loan Given Va. Cooperative

Fredericksburg, Va., Oct. 24 (Spl.).—The Northern Neck Electric Cooperative has received a new loan allotment of $50,000 from the Rural Electrification Administration to finance construction of rural power lines in Stafford, King George, Westmoreland, Richmond, Lancaster and Northumberland Counties.

J. Everett Sanders, president of the cooperative, said the loan, plus amounts available from previous allotments, will finance construction of lines to provide service to 200 additional farms and other rural consumers.

Baltimore Registration Of Voters at 383,677

Baltimore, Oct. 24 (AP).—Baltimore's voting polls continued to climb to an all-time high with 383,677 voters registered as of October 1, 1945, it was indicated by figures supplied by James L. Henneman, president of the board of supervisors of elections.

Registrations have increased steadily during the past three months, William Graff, clerk of the board, announced. During the period from July 1 to October 1, new names totaled 1340.

Examine Corpse

2 Girls Held For Breaking Into Morgue

Baltimore, Oct. 24 (AP).—Two young women, who broke through a window in the Baltimore morgue to view a corpse, today landed in jail for 24 hours on a charge of disorderly conduct.

They were unable to pay fines of $1 apiece, wit hcosts, imposed by Magistrate George P. Welzant in Eastern Police Court.

Dorothy Pfeifer, 21, of Baltimore, and Ida Mae Shankes, 21, of Parkersburg, W. Va., testified that a sailor suggested the illegal entry. Patrolman James McNamara, Eastern District, testified that, after noticing a broken window in the morgue, he found the girls examining a body which had been pulled out from a compartment.

PSC Hearing TodayonPhone Service Denial

Baltimore, Oct. 24 (AP).—The Public Service Commission will hold a hearing tomorrow on a complaint by World Wide News and Music Service, Inc., that the Baltimore, Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. has refused to grant it additional private line facilities.

At the same time, the 7-year-old case under which World Wide got its PSC authorization to receive private lines, will be reopened and reexamined by the telephone company, which in its answer to the complaint accused World Wide of having made illegal use of its equipment.

The phone company claimed its refusal to give more private wires terminating in loudspeakers in public places was based on the applicant's record showing that 10 of its 11 Baltimore clients have been raided for suspected bookmaking activities.

World Wide asked for facilities for six new locations, one of them in Hyattsville and the others in Baltimore, and termed the telephone company's refusal to comply "unwarranted."

The telephone company replied that same of these proposed localities were suspected of gambling and bookmaking activities, and said it based its refusal upon the Public Service Commission's specification accompanying the original order seven years ago that service would have to be furnished only where there "was no apparent possibility of illegal use."

Mrs. Smith Freed Pending Appeal On Conviction

Harrisonburg, Va., Oct. 24 (AP).—Mrs. Grace Smith, sentenced to 20 years in the penitentiary Monday after a Rockingham County Circuit Court found her guilty in the death of her husband, has been released on bond of $15,000. Defense counsel also was granted a 60-day stay of execution to allow attorneys an opportunity to seek a writ of error from the State Supreme Court.

The defense, in a written motion yesterday, contended that the evidence showed that Frank Smith committed suicide and alleged that evidence highly prejudicial to the defendant had been admitted at the trial.

Previously a motion to set aside the verdict as contrary to law and evidence was denied by Judge H. W. Bertram, who presided at the trial.

Must Improve Caliber Of Labor, Farmers Told

Frederick, Md., Oct. 24 (Spl.).—If agriculture is to maintain an equal pace with other types of industry in the decades immediately ahead, it must improve itself sufficiently to command a better caliber of labor, W. Alvord Sherman, assistant State supervisor, Emergency Farm Labor, told members of the Kiwanis Club here today.

Deploring the "hired man" complex as a stumbling block in the association of farm owners and their workers, Mr. Sherman declared that agriculture must of necessity bridge this outmoded cleavage, raise the social status of farm laborers and effect essential improvements in minimum standards of wages and housing.

Frederick Reminded Of Re-Registration

Frederick, Md., Oct. 24 (Spl.).—Frederick City officials were informed today that they must provide for a general reregistration of municipal voters here next spring by Jacob H. Ramsburg, a member of the Frederick County delegation to the House of Delegates. City registration books are reported in bad shape in view of the fact that no general registration had been held since 1912. A reregistration has been variously estimated to cost between $2000 and $3000 in excess of the sum that will have to be appropriated for the regular election next June.

State Employe Dies After Truck Mishap

Aberdeen, Md., Oct. 24 (AP).—A 65-year-old State Roads Commission watchman died early today in the Aberdeen Proving Ground post hospital after losing his right leg when a truck trailer skidded and overturned, pinning him beneath it.

State Trooper Bernard Havlich said Landon Bishop, 65, of Churchville, Harford County, was injured after the truck skidded in an attempt to avoid a car which had been flagged down by Bishop.

The veteran watchman lost his left leg in a train accident in 1907.

Greyhound Gets Shorter Route to D. C.

Richmond, Va., Oct. 23 (AP).—The State Corporation Commission today granted two certificates of public convenience and necessity to Richmond-Greyhound Lines, Inc., which would shorten and straighten the route between here and the Virginia-District of Columbia lne, and took under advisement the application of Story Busline for permission to institute new passenger routes in the Fredericksburg area. Public hearings were conducted in the SCC court room this morning on the three applications.

Richmond-Greyhound will begin its new route at Woodbridge, going north over State Highway 350—generally referred to as the Henry G. Shirley Memorial Highway—to the Pentagon Building, a distance of approximately 18 miles.

It also will offer service commencing at Four Mile Fork, 4 mlies south of Fredericksburg, and running north over the new highway known as Alternate U. S. Highway 1, through Fredericksburg to the new bridge at the boundary line between Fredericksburg and Stafford County.

The Story Busline, operated by A. Jett Story, has applied for a certificate covering operation between Sylvania plant over State Highway 2 to Fredericksburg, then over U. S. Highway 1 and State Highway 51 to Spottsylvania and Snell, then to Post Oak to Margo and thence to Lucks stor eand return. It also will operate from Sylvania plant to Fredericksburg, Five Mile Forks and then to Todd's Tavern, and Ray's Service Station. It was specified that no passenger is to be picked up or discharged whose journey begins and ends on U. S. Highway 1 on the route between Sylvania plant and Luck's store.

U. S. Expected To Keep Acreage Around Quantico

Manassas, Va., Oct. 24 (AP).—W. Stuart Symington, Surplus Property Administrator, has indicated in a report that acreage taken over during the war by the Quantico Marine Base is expected to remain in Government hands.

Although the Government expects to dispose of six million acres of land, the additional property acquired by the Quantico base, Fort Belvoir, Va., and Fort George Meade, Md., is expected to be retained. The area taken over to supplement the Quantico reservation was approximately 50,000 acres, located in Prince William, Stafford and Fauquier Counties.

Leesburg Burial For Miss Bentley

Baltimore, Oct. 24 (AP).—Funeral services in Baltimore tomorrow for Miss Mary Gray Bentley, retired social worker, will be followed by burial at her native Leesburg, Va.

Miss Bentley, who had made her home in Baltimore at intervals since 1881, died Monday night after a long illness.

She was associated for 12 years with the Maryland Children's Aid Society in Frederick, and later was connected with the Henry Watson Children's Aid Society here.

Odenton Man Killed, 2 Hurt in Md. Crash

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 24 (AP).—James A. Norris, 31-year-old laborer of Odenton, was killed instantly and two other persons were injured slightly, when his automobile collided with another machine driven by Harry M. Bull, Baltimore attorney, Gergeant W. L. Brown of the Ferndale Police reported today.

Bull and a woman companion, Isabella Wiley, suffered lacerations of the face and arms. The collision occurred on the Crain Highway, near Conoways, police state.

Willett Named Head Of Richmond Schools

Richmond, Va., Oct. 24 (AP).—H. I. Willett, superintendent of Norfolk County Schools, has been named superintendent of Richmond Public Schools, succeeding Jesse H. Binford.

Willett has been superintendent of Norfolk County schools since 1942. He will assume his duties in Richmond, January 1, at a salary of $9500 plus certain traveling expenses.

Commission to Study New High School Plan

Winchester, Va., Oct. 24 (Spl.).—Leslie Kline, county superintendent, announced yesterday that he had been informed by Dabny S. Lancaster that a commission headed by W. Irving Dixon has been appointed to study Frederick school needs with regards to a centralized high school.

Kline said that the commission will recommend the site and size of the proposed school which it is thought will cost in the neighborhood of $350,000.

OPA Silent as Man Pays $25 for $2 in Apples

Winchester, Va., Oct. 24 (Spl.).—William Baker of this city paid $25 for $2 worth of apples yesterday and didn't hear a peep from the OPA. The $25 was a fine imposed by Trial Justice W. Erle Edwards, who held that the apples in question had been stolen from Fred Glaize of Winchester.

'That Night With You' Gay Fable at Keith's; Notes of the Theater

IT IS A GAY, tuneful and thoroughly amusing whimsy that RKO-Keith's Theater broke out yesterday in Universal's "That Night With You."

Based on a story by Arnold Belgard and originally more appropriately titled "Once Upon a Dream," this feathery confection has been given a capricious and cleverly contrived screen treatment by Michael Fessier and Ernest Pagano, glossy production by Howard Benedict and sprightly directed by William A. Seiter.

Louise Allbritton

Designed purely for lively enjoyment—a purpose which it admirably fulfills—this imaginative subject is by no means impervious to attack by the overly captious. The sudden twists of a story that endeavors with more than ordinary success to combine a sort of "fantasy," brittle humor and shrewdly modernized version of classic songs are not always sufficiently welded to sustain an unbroken dramatic continuity, but the various movements of the "plot" are so diverting in themselves that no casual amusement seeker will ever notice the deficiency, or mind it, if he does.

The gossamer goings-on all come about because a vivacious young waitress in a nightowl diner has golden dreams of becoming a star of the musical stage. Her dreams are so vivid that to her many of them become realities; realities that the Messrs. Fessier and Pagano have succeeded in translating to the screen with uncommonly happy results.

Most of them, in one way or another, involve Paul Renaud, the great stage producers, who, luckily for the script, has all but forgotten an impetuous and inconstant marriage of 20 years before. Betrothed to Johnny, major domo of the lunch wagon, who insists they wed at once, settle down and have six children, Sally, nevertheless, dreams up a crafty scheme to foist herself off on Mr. Reynaud as his daughter and most available star for his next production.

Frivolous and Funny

The plan works and it doesn't by reason of the disarming devices the authors have employed to introduce a bewildering succession of joyous complications into the domestic and professional concerns of Mr. Renaud, his former wife, his secretary, and all and sundry.

In the meantime, Sally is pursuing her dreams through a series of delightful musical interludes that deviously result in her loss of a father, ascension to stardom, notwithstanding, and a final revelation that ends the picture on a humorously prophetic note that is too valuable to the tale's climax to be divulged.

Tricky lyrics by Jack Brooks and Everett Carter to the Figaro number from "The Barber of Seville," and other compositions of the masters, so deftly as to accelerate rather than impede the story, make a market scene, a visit to the beauty parlor and a Christmas-tree incident potent aids to both the comedy and the melodious charm of a film that hoists itself well out of the ruck.

In the role of Sally, Susanna Foster not only preserves the beauty of the songs by lending them some of the highest notes the screen is apt ever to hear, but performs further vital service by revealing a pert and penetrating gift of comedy. Her performance throughout is one of great personal attractiveness and charm.

Nice Work, Everybody

Her costellar associates have been judiciously selected. Franchot Tone is a suave and quietly amusing Renaud, and David Bruce a robust and no less effective Johnny. Louise Albritton, the secretarial Sheila Morgan, somehow manages to leave the agreeable impression of a Virginia Bruce-Eve Arden-Lillian Tashman composite that contributes generously to the comic content of the hour and a half. Jacqueline de Wit is elegantly efficient, too, as a Mrs. Enoch Arden sort of forgotten wife. Obscured, but not hidden, in a minor role is Buster Keaton, who still is capable of making the merest bit drolly and instantly funny.

The whole thing has a flavor that should tickle 'most any palate.

There is also interest and wide diversity in the short subjects that augment the new Keith bill. "Battling Bass" is a new Sportscope in which Dr. and Mrs. Roy Chapman Andrews demonstrate the intricacies of enticing the fightin'est of game fish onto a hook with various sorts of lures. Instead of dealing with some new-found mining or oil development, "California Boom Town," latest release in the "This Is America" series, is dedicated to the City of Los Angeles, its founding and growth, with no accent whatever upon the slightly worn topic of Hollywood.

The newsreel, devoted to bringing the fleet back to San Francisco and New York from the Pacific, via the Panama Canal, is the final adjunct of a highly recommended menu of light fare.

The matter of the "Stars Over America" tour that was to have inaugurated the Victory War Loan campaign by the mass appearance here of some 30 Hollywood luminaries on October 29, preliminary to breaking up into individual units to blanket the United States, having been held in abeyance on this desk for the greater part of a week, the time now has come to break the bad news. By reason of the long-drawn-out strike that has been hampering the Hollywood studios for months on end, and transportation difficulties that have become more than ever acute, the entire plan for the country-wide tour of the stars has been abandoned. It becomes our unpleasant duty, therefore, to pass along the authoritative word that 30 Hollywood stars will NOT appear in Uline Arena on October 29—or an any other near date, so far as anyone, including the Treasury Department, knows at this writing. So there it is. Read it and weep!

If you are out Bethesda way on Sunday, October 28, and still on a star hunt, however, you might drop into the Hiser Theater and enjoy the Washington first-run of the recent London and New York screen hit, "The Way Ahead." This is the film that marks the return of David Niven to the screen after long service with the British forces. It was directed by Carol Reed, who probably never will escape from the distinction that attended his production of "Night Train"

Line-of-March Note

It ends here.

'Scoundrel' Sought!

Hollywood, Calif., Oct. 24.—Remember Noel Coward in "The Scoundrel"? Twentieth Century's trying to buy the film, to remake it for Clifton Webb. They've got to have pictures ahead for Webb; he gets bored with overlong vacations—even with pay. With Noel in the picture were Julie Haydon, the late Alexander Woollcott, and Hope Williams who's now retired from acting and runs a swank dude ranch in Arizona. . . . No "Anna" yet for "The King of Siam," so Katherine Hepburn is being paged like mad. They must have a lady of quality, and let's face it—how many are there? You name them, I dare you! . . . Lew Ayres will arrive on any boat now. At one time he was thinking of studying for the ministry, but not any more. And for an amazing reason. But he does want to produce pictures when he returns, and that he should do very well. . . . Lois Andrews and Dave Street's romance started out purely as a publicity stunt, but it actually is going to reach the altar. Yes, and I can hear a well known writer saying, "Congratulations, my dears, and remember, I get the exclusive on your divorce."

Katharine Hepburn

Woman Pays and Pays

Oleg Cassini is another of our husbands who's gone into the agency business. His first client is up for a test at Twentieth Century right now. I suppose this means that Oleg will manage his wife, Gene Tierney. Come to think of it, that's a business that pays big dividends. Freddie Brisson manages Roz Russell; Johnny Maschio—his wife, Connie Moore; Vic Orsatti—the body beautiful (Marie McDonald); Leland Hayward — Maggie Sullavan, and let's not forget David O. Selznick and Jennifer Jones—or am I being premature? . . . . When Hollywood gets around to making the life of General Wainwright four or five years from now, Gary Cooper must play it . . . Our western heroes stick together. Tex Ritter is house guesting with Governor Davis of Louisiana while touring the South.

Two of a Kind

Bob Hope started it and Kay Kyser followed suit. He'll do his show from the deck of the USS Enterprise Wednesday from New York Harbor. . . . Don't forget to tune in to the Arch Oboler special show on Navy Day. . . . Lawrence (Dillinger) Tierney carries two bodyguards with him night and day—and not for laughs either. . . . Carmen Miranda's new romance—Agivio Santos. . . . The other day young Slim Aarons and Ring Lardner's two sons were talking with Bill Mauldin about how well "G. I. Joe" went over. Young Mauldin spoke up with, "Yes, I caught a couple of my cartoons in it. I don't say they added to the picture—but they were in there." Bill's here to help put his best seller, "Up Front with Mauldin," on the screen.

Stars Aplenty in Salt Lake

Salt Lake City, Utah, is afloat with movie stars. Fred Zinnemann has a company of 75 there doing "Army Brat." Among them are James Craig, Laura La Plante (remember when she was married to Bill Seiter?), and Doris Dudley (Butch Jenkins' mother). "They'll all get together to give Ella Raines a welcome when she arrives for the Victory drive. I doubt very much if they'll see Shirley Temple though. She's visiting her husband at Fort Douglas. . . . Bud Ernst is snowed under by thousands of letters from women wanting to be in his "Queen for a Day" picture. . . . Ben Blue's first vaudeville job was playing a butler for George M. Cohan. Now he's repeating in "Two Sisters From Boston."

Hardy Talent Is Little Leslie

Fay Helm Hardy has a little glamour girl weighing 7 pounds. She'll christen her Leslie Helm Hardy. Fay writes that she already knows how to get the spotlight. . . . "A certain actress," says Jack Douglas, "now calls her boy friend 'Novocain'—he's such a dope." . . . Tip to Brock Pemberton. How about Frank McHugh for "Harvey"? Yes, and I've thought of another—Glenn Hunter. Remember him in "Merton of the Movies?" . . . Gavin Gordon's been added to "Notorious" cast. . . . We've lost another wonderful song writer — James Monaco, who died of a heart attack. Remember his "Pocketful of Dreams," and all those hit tunes he wrote for Crosby?

Why, We Wonder

No hooting by the four pickets at Sam Goldwyn studio when Orson Welles drives through the gate. In fact, Orson's treated with the utmost respect . . . Speaking of pickets, two men have walked up and down in front of a small department store on Hollywood blvd. for months. I asked why. They hadn't the foggiest idea; nor had the store manager . . . Stars and studios used to have special stories with photos when a contract player was upped in pay. Now they're doing it on the Q. T. Little Jeanne Crain got an enormous increase; has seven more years to go at a salary that would have startled her a year ago . . . The boys in the mail room at RKO have their own pinup gallery. all studio cuties. Last week they added one more—Hal Wallis' star, Lizabeth Scott . . . Strangest couple of the week—Ilona Massey and George (Rosie) Rosenberg. Rosie calls her "a high class canary."

LEONARD LYONS

Loose-Leaf Notebook

New York, Oct. 24.—Now that the mayorality campaign is getting into full swing, District Attorney Beldock of Brooklyn may ask for the indictment of two men who worked for his predecessor, on a charge of misfeasance . . . Criminal lawyers, incidentally, believe that Beldock committeda misdemeanor when he revealed the names of two other defendants in the Genovese case, because these two haven't been apprehended yet . . . Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., may become associated with Jim Reynolds in labor public relations. Reynolds, brother of Quentin Reynolds, was in the Navy assigned to the Brewster plant. . . . Irving Berlin is flying to Hawaii to play in the final performance of his "This Is the Army."

Irving Berlin

David Rockefeller is back from Europe and will be out of the Army soon . . . . Gael Sullivan, the newly appointed Second Assistant Postmaster General, has left for England to discuss international postage. He has no passport, but has a Postoffice Department pass good for passage on any vehicle which carries mail.

When Ingrid Bergman was signed by Paramount to appear opposite Bing Crosby in "The Bells of St. Mary," David O. BANISH UNEMPLOYMENT!

The title of the Full Employment bill now before Congress is misleading. It will not result in full employment. It is just another proposal to cure unemployment by Government spending.

We had 10 years of that before the war and only the war ended our unemployment.

Every wage earner should oppose this bill because it will not save him or her from the hazards and consequences of unemployment. Every wage payer should oppose it because he cannot prosper unless the Nation's wage earners do.

Instead of trying to cure unemployment by Government spending, we should prevent it from ever getting started.

To do this we must have a running inventory or census of unemployment so that at all times we may know how we stand on this vital problem.

On a date to be set by Congress, we should establish a National Work Week of 40 hours at not less than the full 40-hour wages then in force in each establishment.

Then we should advance wages from time to time, to provide the purchasing power to support the ever increasing value of our production. Continuous employment depends on this. As a beginning advance wages 1¢ per hour every four months. For fifty million wage earners this would amount to about two billion dollars a year. To assure continuous employment without causing higher prices or inflation, the time between wage advances to be reduced or extended according to need, as reflected by the unemployment census.

Whenever these 1¢ per hour wage advances prove inadequate to prevent unemployment in the United States from seriously exceeding 3,500,000* persons, the hours in the work week should be reduced, and as many times as necessary, without reducing the weekly pay, until the excess unemployment is absorbed.

Administration by a "Full Employment Commission," to be established by Congress.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

A lot has been printed about labor strikes, but not much about the silent sit-down strike of certain employers. This is a strike chiefly against the OPA and the Treasury. Ultimately, of course, it is also a strike against the public.

Many corporations are operating with small staffs determined to "wait out" the OPA and not operate until reduced taxes are put in force. That is one reason why it may be months before you can buy your new radio, your new automobile or your new washing machine. The makers of these commodities, realizing that they cannot hope to sell more than one machine per customer in less than about a four-year period, want to sell at their own terms, and at the highest possible profit. That's why they're waiting for OPA ceilings to be removed. That's also why they want to wait until excess profits are voted down.

If they don't sell goods between now and January 1, they keep their 1945 profit levels as low as possible, and if the 1945 profit does not exceed the average profit for the 1936-1939 period, they will receive large tax refunds from the Government.

That's why practically no radios for the American public are being produced at several large radio plants throughout the country. Although there has been time since V-J Day for production of at least three million radios by Christmas, not over 500,000 will be on the market.

In the field of housing, real estate dealers are concentrating on high-priced housing, and will continue to do so until OPA rent controls are removed. Then they can charge whatever rentals they want for the lower-priced housing; also, for the housing they already have.

Bombs for Congress

Six members of a congressional committee sailing to Europe last August were nearly scared out of their wits while on the Queen Mary. Headed by Representative Louis Rabaut of Michigan, a subcommittee of the House Appropriations Committee had debated whether to fly or to go by boat. Finally they decided to sail—but they wished they hadn't.

The group which decided to enjoy some relaxation on steamer chairs included Dean Gillespie of Colorado, Robert Jones of Ohio, Butler Hare of South Carolina, Thomas O'Brien of Illinois and Judge John Kerr of North Carolina. Kerr had argued for the boat trip and finally convinced his colleagues.

The Congressmen were just beginning to relax on their first night out from New York when an Army officer came to Chairman Rabaut with a disturbing message.

"The skipper thought you gentlemen ought to know," he said, "that we have just received a code message from the FBI. They report they have discovered there are a number of incendiary bombs on the boat scheduled to go off at midnight.

"There are several companies of Japanese-American troops on board," the officer told Rabaut, "and Japan is still at war with the United States."

Rabaut called his colleagues together and told them the news. Judge Kerr's first comment was: "I wonder if the skipper has ordered airplanes to hover around the ship."

All were alerted the entire night while the ship's crew searched unsuccessfully for the bombs. No trace of them was ever found, but the restful relaxation the Congressmen had hoped for was not achieved until they set foot on solid ground once again.

Jap Reparations

U. S. Reparations Commissioner Ed Pauley will leave for Japan early next month to study the situation there. However, policy on reparations will be determined, not by MacArthur, but back in Washington after Pauley's return.

Along with Pauley will go two excellent advisers—Owen Lattimore, former adviser to Chiang Kai-shek and leading expert on the Far East, plus Joseph de Bois of the Treasury, who was with Pauley in Europe. Both Lattimore and De Bois have definite convictions on rooting out Jap militarism and building up a Japanese democracy. They are strong supporters of Justice Byrnes' broad-gauged policy for Japan.

James Angell, former Columbia University professor now with the Foreign Economic Administration, has been named to carry on Pauley's work on European reparations. Angell is a sound, progressive economist.

Another excellent choice to be announced by the White House is that of the Treasury's Harold Glasser, who will head a special economic and financial mission remaining in Japan to advise MacArthur.

Capitol Chaff

Democratic Representative Louis Rabaut of Detroit, an A-1 member of the House Appropriations Committee, will run for Governor of Michigan next year. . . . Secretary of Commerce Wallace is worried over the way the Truman Administration is drifting. . . . American soldiers in Tokyo are burned up over General MacArthur's decree that the Imperial Hotel is off-limits for all enlisted men. Only officers can go there. They are asking if they fought the war to set up a caste system in the Pacific. Harry Truman has told friends that he realizes his political prestige has begun to slip for the first time. He is now facing two deadly difficult problems—reconversion at home, snarled-up relations with Russia abroad. The fact that Truman realizes his troubles in itself is a good thing. . . . Eight hundred Marines from the First Division are still digging ditches on Okinawa awaiting transportation home. These are the same Marines who stormed Guadalcanal so heroically, but, like some other heroes, are soon forgotten. . . . Simon & Schuster will soon publish the inside story of what happened inside the White House during the last 30 years. It is the diary of the late Col. Edward M. Starling, long head of the White House Secret Service. . . . Elmer Davis, who gave up his radio news commentaries in 1942 to become head of the OWI, will be back on the air in a few weeks. This time he will broadcast from Washington.

Pacific Bases

Despite Army opposition, the Navy is not delaying a bit about getting its foothold in the Pacific islands. On the theory that possession is nine-tenths of the law it is recruiting young men with families to live on these islands at once.

The Foreign Economic Administration, part of which was transferred to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, is working with the Navy on this program.

An enticing picture is laid before prospective recruits, featuring prefabricated, air-conditioned houses, fresh meat and vegetables flown in by air and a network of commercial air lines between islands which the Navy plans to operate. Salaries are good, as Government salaries go.

These men will be commercial representatives of the RFC, which will become the trading corporation for the islands. Every effort is being made to get the men signed up and on their way this month.

Secret Mission Blasts Killed Kennedy's Son

Lieut. Joseph P. Kennedy, jr., son of the former Ambassador to Britain, lost his life in August of 1944 during highly secret experiments with radio-controlled aircraft, the Navy revealed yesterday.

He was flying toward Normandy in a plane loaded with 21,170 pounds of high explosives when mysterious explosions demolished the ship. His companion, Lieut. Wilford J. Willy of Fort Worth, Tex., another Navy pilot, was killed with him.

Young Kennedy was reported missing August 12, 1944 and is now officially listed as dead.

Volunteered for Mission

Both Kennedy and Willy volunteered for the ill-fated mission and both have been awarded the Navy Cross posthumously.

They met their deaths during secret Army-Navy experiments on use of drones (pilotless, radio-controlled aircraft) as an attack weapon.

The plan called for the two volunteers to take the explosive drone into the air and stay with it until both of the "mother planes had achieved complete radio control over it. Then they were to bail out so that the drone could proceed on the mission which would have ended in a crash dive on a V-2 rocket launching site in Normandy.

Cause Never Determined

Kennedy and Willy made the takeoff and their plane, a Liberator, was proceeding according to schedule when it was demolished by two mid-air explosions. The cause has never been determined despite exhaustive official inquiry.

Willy was 36. He made his home at Fort Worth, Tex., where his wife now lives. Kennedy was 30. He joined the Naval Reserve on October 15, 1941.

Independence Of Java Sure, Soekarno Says

Batavia, Java, Oct. 24 (AP).—President Soekarno of the "Indonesian republic" declared today "no power on earth" can stop the independence movement in the Dutch East Indies, and said he would invite committees from the United States Congress and British Commons to visit Indonesia to see "the true situation."

He promised on "open door policy as far as foreign investors are concerned," adding:

"We don't want to throw the Dutch into the sea. They can maintain their financial holdings here. These things can be arranged by a treaty with the Dutch."

Claims Complete Control

Soekarno said his administration was in complete control of public services in the East Indies and added that the services were running smoothly, "to the wonderment of Dutch colonizers and despite chaotic conditions generally."

He accused the Dutch of flooding the country with newly made Japanese guilders to add to the problem of inflation, but declared his government would take quick action on the monetary situation.

"The Dutch have no corner on financial brains," he said. "We can and will employ the best possible financial advisers from abroad. Right now we are seeking the aid of American financiers to advise my financial minister. We need American financial and technical help to develop our country."

Ignores Firing of Shot

A shot was fired outside the window during the interview. But Soekarno paid no attention for gunfire has been commonplace this last month.

Thirty Indonesians were killed yesterday in a new outbreak of fighting on the outskirts of Batavia. One Dutch officer was wounded before the irregulars fled, abandoning two machineguns.

(In London Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin disclosed that the British army was sending additional troops to Java because the general situation "continues to give rise to anxiety.")

Ashes of 1091 Prisoners Leave Japan Aboard C-54 Transport

By Vern Haugland

En Route from Tokyo to Manila, Oct. 24 (AP).—The 14 wooden boxes were stacked neatly in the center aisle of the plane. They were lashed down firmly against the bumpy weather. Some were the size of orange crates. Others were larger, or smaller.

We 30 passengers, mostly headed homeward, were aligned along the walls in the bucket seats of the big, four-motored C-54 transport. We could see the black stenciling on the side of each box. Each bore a quartermaster address and a notice "air shipment required—officer courier."

"Do you know those boxes have a No. 2 priority out of Tokyo, and that when we get to Manila, where more planes are available, they will have a No. 1 priority all the way to the States?" asked a crew member.

Wouldn't Be So Comfortable

"I bet some of these passengers wouldn't be so comfortable if they knew what is in them. It's listed on the manifest—ashes of 1091 former prisoners of war. That lieutenant with the glasses is in charge of them."

A bit reluctantly, Second Lieut. Roy Carter, Port Huron, Mich., talked about the boxes—weighing from 15 to 85 pounds each—containing earthen jars. More than half of the 1091 were Americans. Most of the remainder were Dutch. There were seven Italians and one Norwegian.

Carter said:

"Most of them were fellows captured at the start of the war in the Philippines, East Indies and Malaya. Most of them died long ago, although there were some B-29 fliers who died within the last year.

First Shipment to U. S.

"This is the first shipment of ashes from Japan to the United States, I am informed. But it is just the beginning. All of these jars were on shelves in just one temple—Ju Gangi, at Osaka. There were others all over Japan."

Taking information from dog tags and other records, the Japanese engraved the name of each victim—in Japanese—on a jar and also noted the date and "cause of death." Carter said the Japanese cremated the bodies and kept the ashes in a temple where a Buddhist priest prayed over them daily.

"The Quartermaster Corps assigned me to accompany the ashes home because I am high on points," Carter said. "At first, I didn't care for the idea. Then I figured it was the least I could do for the fellows who had lost their lives, and for their families."

Up forward, men started stretching out in their seats and cocking their feet atop convenient boxes—some not realizing that the last traces of more than 1000 men were underfoot—also going home.

Moore Named British Navy Delegate Here

Fleet Admiral Sir James Fownes Somerville, who routed Japanese at Java and chased the Bismarck to a watery grave in the Atlantic, yesterday relinquished his post as head of the British Admiralty delegation in Washington.

The 63-year-old sea veteran sat as representative of the Royal Navy on the combined chiefs of staff and attended the Yalta conference with th elate President Roosevelt during his one-year tenure here.

He will be succeeded by Admiral Sir Henry Ruthven Moore, 59-year-old former commander in chief of the home fleet.

Admiral Somerville, one of the most colorful and battle-active officers in the British Navy, came to his appointment in Washington in October of 1944 after command of Britain's Eastern Fleet. He had fought the Japanese at Sumatra, Java and Malacca Straits and helped sweep enemy power from the sea from Africa to Australia.

Admiral Moore was made commander in chief of the fleet at the time of the invasion of France. Winner of the DSO in the Battle of Jutland, he served in Washington in 1921-22 as assistant secretary to the British delegation during the conference on naval armament limitations. During the war served also as the Admiralty representative in U-boat strategy conferences.

Richard Browning, Negro, 36, of 1732 Benning rd. was changing a tire yesterday at the gas station at 17th st. and Benning rd., when the tire blew out and struck him, breaking both his arms. He was admitted to Gallinger Hospital.

Brenda—Will You Step Out With Me Tonight?

I know I've been an awful grouch not taking you any place lately. But after standing all day at my new job, my feet darn near killed me with callouses and burning. Now I've reformed—or rather my feet have—thanks to the medicinal Ice-Mint you advised. Never tried anything that seemed to draw the pain and fire right out so fast—and the way it helps soften callouses is nobody's business! Been able to get some extra overtime money—so what do you say, let's go dancing tonight. You can step on my Ice-Mint feet all you want.

Women Plan Annual Bazaar At Cheverly

Women of the Cheverly (Md.) Community Church will sponsor an annual Church Bazaar at 8 p. m. tomorrow. Mrs. J. R. Richards and Mrs. Ralph Stewart are co-chairman of the affair.

One of the high spots of the bazaar will be an exhibit of wedding gowns. Mrs. Andrew Taylor is chairman of the exhibit.

Useful and interesting merchandise will be offered at many booths. Some of these booths and the chairmen in charge include Mrs. Walter Davidson, thrift booth; Mrs. Harry Broderick, canned fruits, vegetables and jellies; Mrs. Eric Stearns, novelties; Mrs. Lee Harwood, children's novelties; Mrs. Louise Lanning, plant booth; Mrs. George Armstrong, apron booth; Mrs. Roy Stetler, jr., handkerchief booth; Mrs. Marian McCray, needlework; Mrs. Frak Van Jeune, grab bag booth.

Young people of the church in charge of refreshments are: Anna Mae Mitchell, Lorianne Wells, Cora Jean Whitehead, Ethel Welksner, Patsy Owens, Mary Jo Schuessler, Lila Joyce Wells, and Shirley Walkendifer.

Channel Storm Detonates Mine Against Seawall

London, Oct. 23 (AP).—A 70-mile-hour gale roaring in from the Channel swept at least six German mines onto the beaches of southern England today, and one exploded against a seawall and severely damaged shops and homes at Highcliffe-on-Sea.

A two-masted schooner yacht carrying several RAF men on leave was feared lost in the Channel.

Blizzards in Russia

Moscow, Oct. 23 (AP).—October blizzards, bringing the earliest heavy freeze in some Soviet regions in 75 years, have endangered the harvest of potatoes, Russia's "second bread."

2-Year Sentence In Va. Price Case

Harrisonburg, Va., Oct. 24 (AP).—United States District Court Judge John Paul yesterday sentenced Carroll S. Hockman, Fisher's Hill slaughterer, to two years in prison and imposed a $5000 fine after Hockman was found guilty on five counts of selling freshly butchered meat above the OPA ceiling price.

Hockman, who pleaded guilty was sentenced to a year on each count, but the penalty in three of the five charges was set concurrently with the other two.

U. S. Asked To Buy Sites On E. Capitol

Development along East Capitol st. of a "Federal rectangle" of buildings would boost land values in the area and draw population from over-crowded northwest Washington, Public Buildings Commissioner W. E. Reynolds declared yesterday.

He sought approval from the House Public Buildings and Grounds committee of legislation that would allow the Government to purchase a four?block-wide strip extending east from the United States Capitol to the Anacostia River.

The land would be held as the site for future Federal buildings as part of a long-range construction plan which was initialed with the erection of the Supreme Court building and Folger Library at the west end of the "rectangle."

Reynolds said purchase of the entire strip rather than of one building site at a time would be "good business," because land values would jump as soon as the Government's intentions to develop the area were known.

He pointed out that as the result of the Government's purchase of land in Suitland, Md., eight years ago as the location for a proposed film library and record-storage building, "one corner of the land is now worth as much as what we paid for the entire site."

The development of East Capitol st. is only one item in a gigantic, near-billion dollar postwar Federal building program of the Administration, and envisages such structures in the rectangle-area as a 20-million dollar office building for Government bureaus.

Already one agency, the Federal Bureau of Investigation, has requested space in the proposed building to expand its crowded facilities, Reynolds told the committee.

LAVISH CLASSROOM—Three American University students and Dean Harry W. Ketchum of the Undergraduate Division examine one of the school's classrooms at 1901 F st. nw. The room, endowed by the Alfred P. Sloan Foundation as an Economics Institute, cost $7000 to decorate. Light blue-painted walls, venetian blinds, indirect lighting, lined oak tables and bookcases and dark blue and yellow, gold-nailed chairs are among the luxuries already installed. A deep-piled rug will be added later. The rooms will be formally opened for classes November 1. Left to right are Robert I. Clark, Dean Ketchum, Robert L. Stevens and Miss Glee Hanson Barnes

Order to Reduce Television Tower Height Is Held Up

The District's Board of Zoning Adjustment yesterday agreed to hold up an order reducing the height of a proposed 300-foot television tower at 40th and Brandywine sts. nw., to 200 feet.

A stay in the effectiveness of the order was granted after Harry Wender, attorney for Bamberger Broadcasting Service, Inc., pointed out that the Federal Communications Commission is considering a new rule on tower heights which would make a 300-foot tower mandatory in the Brandywine area.

The Zoning Adjustment Board also granted permission to the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. to erect a $250,000 central office building on N st. se., between 28th and 29th sts.

Many People in Palestine Bear Arms Illegally, British Report

London, Oct. 24 (U.P.).—Colonial Secretary George Hall told Commons today that efforts were being made to disarm a "large number" of unauthorized persons possessing arms in Palestine, and Prime Minister Clement Attlee was reported planning an appeal for peace until the thorny problem of Jewish immigration is settled.

An Arab spokesman, commenting on a memorandum delivered Tuesday by the American Zionist Emergency Council to United States Secretry of State James F. Byrnes protesting against consulting Arab states in the affairs of Palestine, said it was "absurd to speak of American commitments toward the Jews, because the commitments were never made officially."

Hall said Britain would use only the necessary force to maintain order.

Difficulties Delicate Question

Pressed as to whether steps taken to seize illegal arms had been successful, Hall said:

"That is a very difficult and delicate question. The governments of Palestine are faced with this difficulty and I am sure they are taking whatever steps they can to obtain the surrender of these arms."

Hall admitted British troops had been cautioned as to the use of arms against Jewish rioters, but he denied any instructions had been given that they should endanger their lives by not using arms.

It was believed Attlee would appeal for peacebut would not make concessions either to the Jews or Arabs on the immigration question, and that he may report the appointment of an investigating committee.

Arabs Condemn Zionist Views

The Arab spokesman contended repeated "unofficial American declarations," favoring the Jewish views on Palestine were extracted from Congressmen by "Jewish pressure groups," and that the Zionist attitude in America was bound to increase anti-Semitism bceause the "Americans resented being pushed by the Zionists on the road detrimental to world-wide American interests."

The spokesman also denied reports that illegal Arab immigration into Palestine exceeded the illegal Jewish immigration by 50 times. He said many Arabs entered Palestine to work as seasonal workers—mainly as citrus fruit packers—and then left.

Obsolete Treatment

We are pleased to note that progress is being made in shaping legislation to create a national institute of mental health in Washington. Psychiatry, as we have previously pointed out, has too long been the stepchild of the medical profession. That fact is responsible for tens of thousands of wrecked lives. Now that Congress and the people are more acutely aware of the necessity for competent treatment of mental diseases, the country must try to make up for its neglect of this field of medicine in the past.

It would be a grave mistake to assume, however, that the problem is merely one of setting up a new institute of mental health to encourage research and the training of students in this field. The tragic fact is that known methods of treating mental ailments are frequently not applied. The tendency is to confine mental patients in institutions and forget them. If reports reaching us are correct, positive and enlightened treatment of the mentally ill is the exception rather than the rule. We have been especially disturbed by persistent reports of obsolete methods and inadequate treatment at St. Elizabeths Hospital. Since many of the States look to St. Elizabeths for guidance, its backwardness in the actual treatment of mental health is reflected far beyond its own walls.

Now that a large number of veterans are going to St. Elizabeths we think Congress is under special obligations to see that they are given the most advanced and effective treatment known to psychiatry. Merely to confine veterans who become mentally unbalanced in fighting for their country is an offense of the gravest sort. We suggest that the sponsors of the mental health bill extend their good work into an investigation of present methods of dealing with mentally sick patients in the Government's own institutions. Research and training necessarily lose much of their meaning when institutions fail to apply treatments already known to be useful.

De Gaulle's Victory

The French election had two surprises. The first was the showing made by the Communists who emerged with the largest contingent of delegates in the Assembly. The second was the vote polled by the Popular Republican Movement, a Catholic and liberal group whose existence as a party dates from the period immediately after liberation. Strongly Gaullist, the Popular Republicans and Leon Blum's Socialists, whose platform in the election was similar to that of the De Gaulle regime, are likely to prove the chief bulwark of the government during the period of constitution-writing. In fact, the combined vote of the pro-Gaullist elements was so large as to give De Gaulle a certain and unequivocal mandate, and thus to stabilize and strengthen his position as France's spokesman both on domestic and foreign affairs. What happened at this election confirms the position of those who since the murky days of Vichy have seen no other French leader in sight than De Gaulle.

As was not unexpected, the trend in France is leftward. In fact, the choice which the voters in that country faced was not between radical and conservative but between various shades of radicalism. The choice, in other words, was between left and left, and particularly between Socialist and Communist. And, despite the strength displayed by the Communists, the decision of the great majority was in favor of non-Communist elements or, to put it in another way, in favor of evolution rather than revolution. Nor is there any reason to believe that if the choice were offered to other European peoples at this time, the results would be any different. From now on our foreign policy must reckon with this choice.

The French election was notable for still another reason. Coming though it did after years of domestic turmoil, war, foreign occupation and grave stresses and strains, it was calm and peaceful throughout. The issues of the campaign had been threshed out at countless meetings. When the voters went to the polls, as they did in very large numbers, they knew what they wanted, and proved it by the votes they cast. They wanted to draw a curtain on the past. Old line leaders such as Edouard Daladier who were identified with the bad old days of France's weakness were cast into limbo. On the other hand, all but one of the members of De Gaulle's cabinet were elected. The demonstration last Sunday of French democracy in action was heartening. It will encourage the democratic spirit everywhere on the continent.

Blue Ribbon Committee

The Senate of the United States is about to establish what may be—and should be—the most important committee in its history. This committee will ponder the policies to be adopted for control, and exploitation, of one of the most momentous developments of modern times—the release of atomic energy. American minds have come into the possession of knowledge pregnant at once with peril and with hope for all mankind. The legislative committee which is to shape the uses to which we put this knowledge must assume a gigantic and fearful responsibility. It must be a committee of the Senate's ablest and wisest men. And it must have the leadership of a man with imagination capable of grasping the immense significance of the task to be embraced.

Senator Brien McMahon, although a relative newcomer to the Senate, has shown such a grasp of the problem at hand. He has shown it by his sponsorship of the resolution through which the committee on atomic legislation is to be created. And he has shown it by the progressive positions he has taken on questions of international relations. By every right—and by the traditions of the Senate itself—Senator McMahon should be named chairman of the committee. In every instance, the past 17 special committees created by the Senate have been chaired by their sponsors. But Senator McMahon's appointment to that vital post appears to be threatened by a coalition of some of the Southern members of his own party—who seek, as they have so many times before, to retain power in their own hands. They are supporting the specious contention that appointment to the chairmanship should be on a basis of seniority.

The appointment to this particular chairmanship—if to no other—should be on a basis of merit and of understanding of the issues to be determined. The issues are far too important to be subjected to party politicking. The very consideration of the outworn doctrine of seniority as a basis for disposing of this vital chairmanship is a confession of the bankruptcy with which some members of the Senate approach the problem. Leadership of the committee should go to the man who conceived it and brought it into being.

Export-Import Bank

There are a number of compelling reasons which lead us to look with dismay upon a report that Mr. Leo Crowley may be appointed to the chairmanship of the Export-Import Bank. This bank is to be one of the principal instruments of American financial aid to our allies. It is no ordinary lending institution. It needs to be governed as much by statesmanship as by shrewdness and more by broad concepts than by the narrow tenets of the professional banker. Mr. Crowley's background and outlook are disqualifications for this highly important post.

Mr. Crowley possesses, moreover, a specific disqualification which, in our judgment, should altogether rule him out of consideration for the Export-Import Bank assignment. He has been, during his tenure as a Government official, and to the best of our knowledge still is, chairman of the board and president of the Standard Gas & Electric Company, as well as chairman of the board and president of the Philadelphia Company. From the former he has received a salary of $38,000 per annum; from the latter, a subsidiary, a salary of $37,000 per annum. The Export-Import Bank Act of 1945 provides: "Each of the appointed directors shall devote his time not otherwise required by the business of the United States principally to the business of the bank."

If Mr. Crowley were to assume the Export-Import Bank chairmanship, he would be obliged, we take it, to relinquish his private positions—something he was never willing to do in favor of the numerous other governmental offices he occupied. There is no room in this post for divided attention, let alone divided allegiance.

Standardization

Standardization is a long word, but it is one of the greatest short cuts we know to efficiency in industrial operations. Mr. William L. Batt has taken it upon himself to crusade for the maintenance of the standardization we have developed in wartime. He has reference in particular to engineering standards. At the Combined Production and Resources Board he saw what was accomplished in this respect under the spur of wartime necessity. Some of these experiences he recited in a recent talk at Ottawa. Lack of standardization as between Britain, Canada and the United States was responsible for production delays which were extremely costly in time and money. Gradually a measure of standardization was introduced, and Mr. Batt's fear is that removal of some of the pressure for improvements along this line will vanish with the return of peace.

Let us go to the humble screw thread for illustration. Mr. Batt explained that trouble started even before we entered the war when the British and French placed contracts for equipment in this country and insisted on the use of Whitworth screw threads. This necessitated installation of new taps, dies and gauges to produce goods according to specifications. When we finally entered the war and lend-lease shipments mounted into the billions, the difficulties caused by such a small matter as screw threads became positively formidable. They even led to the establishment of identical supply depots in the Middle East, one stocked with parts for Whitworth repairs (British) and one with parts for Sellers (American).

Furthermore, Mr. Batt said we were making machine guns and antiaircraft guns seemingly identical with those produced by our Allies. But the parts were not interchangeable, because of the differences in the little screw threads holding them together. Eventually, thanks to the improvising skill of Army engineers, such difficulties were overcome. But we are told that many fundamental and long-range problems of technical nature remain, calling for cooperative action. Exchange of information between nations with a view to the establishment of uniform standards is not only essential to the most efficient conduct of global wars; it is immensely valuable in peacetime. In fact, Mr. Batt rightly concluded that it is essential to manufacturers engaged in world commerce.

Prices And Wages

The wage-price policy reportedly adopted by the Administration on Monday is dictated by considerations of buying power. It would hold the line resolutely against all proposed price increases, while encouraging industry to raise wages. Wage increases, the Administration economists appear to be convinced, can be granted to workers through elimination of wasteful wartime employment practices, such as hoarding of labor, fictitious "upgrading" and extravagant overtime premiums, and as a result of enhanced productivity.

There can be no doubt that substantial wage increases would avoid a serious reduction of weekly take-home pay. It is equally true, of course, that the more efficient American industries can pay such increases and still reap reasonable, if not rich, profits. But not all companies are efficient, and certainly not all of them are equally so. Nor has productivity grown at an equal rate in all industries. In some situations, perhaps, a demand for a 30 per cent wage increase to offset the loss of overtime pay may be feasible. But a general granting of so substantial an increase is economically impossible. The Administration is said to be pointing toward raises of about 15 per cent. This may be a feasible approach, provided flexibility is maintained in its application.

The settlement of wage differences between employers and employes depends in the first instance on governmental announcement of a firm price policy. Wage increases are meaningless if the cost of living is not kept stable. And no employer can negotiate with his employes, in any case, unless he knows what he is going to be able to charge for his product. Of late the tendency on the part of employers has been to yield to wage demands—on the condition that price boosts will be permitted. The discussions, in other words, have been largely hypothetical. They can get down to brass tacks only after a price policy has been officially established. Announcement of a price policy will facilitate not only collective bargaining but the adjustment of wage disputes through conciliation and arbitration. It will give the conciliators and arbitrators a needed frame of reference within which to make decisions.

Wellsian Apocalypse

Among those who are convinced that the end of the world, or, at any rate, the end of human life, is very close at hand is our old friend Mr. H. G. Wells. What makes Mr. Wells' opinion interesting is the prophetic reputation he has acquired in matters having to do with science and politics. He foretold the introduction of atomic energy as a weapon of war in 1933, though it came a dozen years later. He was only one year out when he said that hostilities between Germany and Poland, which would presently involve the rest of the world, would break out in 1940. In his latest eschatological prognosis he mentions no specific dates, but from the tone of an article contributed recently to the Sunday Express of London, we gather that it would not surprise him if the end came next week or even tomorrow.

What Mr. Wells is thinking about, of course, are the terrible and almost unimaginably destructive potentialities of the atomic age and the utter unlikelihood that human nature can adjust rapidly enough to the utterly new world into which it has been so abruptly thrust. In 1914 the prescient Mr. Wells wrote that "the old tendencies of human nature, suspicion, jealousy, particularism" could not coexist with "the monstrous destructive power of the new appliances the inhuman logic of science had produced." The dilemma of mankind at the present moment could not be better stated. There is a very strong body of opinion, supported in some cases by religious conviction, that no matter what changes may occur in the rest of the natural universe, humanity itself must remain essentially unchanged. Evidently Mr. Wells has come to this same conclusion, for he writes that "there is no way out, around or through the impasse." Humanity, he says, has come to "the end of its tether."

Of any wholesale fear of this event there is as yet no sign, although Mr. Wells observes that "people are discovering that a frightful queerness has come into life," that "even unobservant people are betraying by fits and starts a certain wonder, a shrinking fugitive sense that something is happening so that life will never be quite the same." Meanwhile, hardly more than two months after the end of the most terrible war in history, the inevitability of another and yet more terrible war is being accepted as axiomatic, and, if we can trust Mr. Drew Pearson, President Truman has admitted to his intimates that an armaments race between ourselves and Russia is already proceeding at full speed. Surely we must stop, look, and listen as never before.

Feminine War Toll

By Malvina Lindsay

Future Misfits

THE NATION is just awakening to the fact that it has a war toll of women as well as of men. That toll is not in lives, but in the chronic debility and ill health growing out of the strains and pressures of wartime living.

Lest American women begin to feel too sorry for themselves at that thought, it should be pointed out that they themselves are partly responsible for this. The war caught them generally lacking in the solid basis of health their available knowledge and opportunities had made possible.

The problem now is to get these feminine war casualties rehabilitated, and to prod all women into making themselves fitter citizens. As was emphasized at the conference here this week of the National Health Advisory Committee of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, women must be educated quickly into realizing the need for strong bodies and nerves to meet their postwar demands and responsibilities. Also, communities must be induced to provide them the necessary health services and opportunities for physical and social (rather than commercial) recreation.

WHILE AMERICAN WOMEN led immeasurably easier lives during the war than did women of most other nations, yet the devitalization many of them suffered holds future danger for the national life. This is particularly true of the young wives of servicemen. These, frequently with accumulating babies, followed their husbands from camp to camp, often living in unhealthful and primitive conditions. The pillar to post existence that many families of servicemen have known, including parking in the overcrowded homes of relatives, together with perpetual mental uncertainty and anxiety, has left a mark on many a young wife who is the mother or future mother of tomorrow's generation.

Another group in need of physical rehabilitation includes those two-job women who drove themselves beyond their strength. These warworkers carried on six-day, eight-hour jobs (frequently with overtime work), doing their housework at night and on Sundays, and draining themselves of all they had to meet the physical and emotional needs of their families. Some of them also suffered from the adaptation they had to make to factory noise, monotony, night work and changing shifts. In most places where women worked, including the home, the pressure and tempo of living were stepped up. In addition, there was the struggle with food, housing and transportation shortages, crowds and reduced merchandising services.

Another strain was caused by doubled up families, by daughters and daughters-in-law coming home with their families, and the old story of too many women in one kitchen. Added to all these was that part of war always hardest to bear, and which has always fallen heaviest upon women—the waiting, the worrying and the fearing.

Business and professional women are taking the lead in a general movement to awaken communities to the problem of their run-down women, victims of the physical and emotional fatigue of war, and to provide facilities to help them become more fit for the future. If communities fail to do this they will pay later in the increase in disease and accidents and the lowered quality of their family life.

CHIEFLY, THOUGH, a new attitude toward the importance of health needs to be developed among women themselves. That is especially needed among the girls and younger women. We are so accustomed to think of the American girl as she is portrayed on magazine covers that it is a shock to see how often a young woman hanging fondly on the arm of a returned serviceman offers a striking physical contrast to him. She is all too likely to be flabby muscled from "sit-itus," to have a posture that is an interrogation mark, and to be malnourished from lunches of sandwiches and cokes.

In two matters especially, diet and physical exercise, American women have long been negligent. For all their supposed knowledge of nutrition, for all the abundance of food in America, they have generally subsisted on more inadequate diets than have men. Surveys have shown this to be especially true of women workers. Also, women have shied away from physical exercise and outdoor recreation, and turned to the sedentary and vicarious self-expression offered them by movies and radio.

Health cannot be presented on a silver platter or through an act of Congress. Women will have to want it badly enough to work for it. Now of all times they should recognize their public obligation not to be useless liabilities in a world that so desperately needs the best of their talents.

Draft Older Men

When considering the present drafting of men for replacement in the occupied zones, why is the limit placed on men up to 26? Why not 27, 28 and 29? There are many men of this age, who have completed their education, have had ROTC training and are not married. Some were deferred for occupational reasons and some for a slight 4F reason. Netiher of these reasons should continue to defer them for work in the occupied zones.

In Time Of Doubt

By Barnet Nover

No Substitute For Preparation

IN HIS ADDRESS to Congress President Truman made a very earnest plea for the establishment of a system of universal training. Only those who have excluded from their minds the dour realities of the world we live in will remain unimpressed by his cogent reason or ignore his unanswerable conclusion.

We have just emerged from a war in which, probably for the last time in our history, we were given time to prepare. As General Marshall has pointed out, speaking of the grim period following Pearl Harbor:

"In good conscience this Nation can take little credit for its part in staving off disaster in those critical days. It is certain that the refusal of the British and Russian peoples to accept what appeared to be inevitable defeat was the great factor in the salvage of our civilization. Of almost equal importance was the failure of the enemy to make the most of the situation."

WE CANNOT AFFORD to assume that some future enemy of the United States will repeat that mistake. Certainly the history of our own times brands such an assumption as unwarranted.

We know that the Nazis made mistakes, some of them fatal. But this should not cause us to lose sight of the fact that, having carefully studied the record of World War I, they avoided enough of the mistakes made by the German general staff and the German government in that war to come perilously close to achieving their aim of world conquest.

At that, with the combined might of Russia, Great Britain, the United States and other nations that made up the most formidable coalition of all times, the Nazis kept Germany at war a full 20 months longer than the Kaiser had succeeded in doing.

MANKIND hopes and prays that there will never be another war.

Maybe there won't be. Maybe, at long last, the promptings of religion, the freightening realization of what modern weapons, including the atomic bomb, can do to civilization, the gradual or rapid acceptance by the nations and peoples of the world of a system of universal order will result in the final banishment of the scourge of mankind.

Can we risk our freedom and independence and security by assuming that these great hopes will become splendid realities? Certainly there is little in the record of international life since the fighting ended to make us think so. We must be prepared for all possibilities, including those we would like to exclude from our consciousness.

ONE OF THESE possibilities, a very real possibility if we remember what happened in the war just ended, was pointed out by President Truman.

"Never again," he said, "can we count on the luxury of time with which to arm ourselves. In any future war, the heart of the United States would be the enemy's first target. Our geographical security is now gone—gone with the advent of the robot bomb, the rocket, aircraft carriers and modern airborne armies."

These weapons have not reached the limit of their potency. Nor has the atomic bomb. If the last war was the most horrible and destructive in history, the next war will be even more horrible and destructive.

But that certainly cannot of itself prevent war. On the contrary, it can hasten war even as the memory of the horror and destructiveness of World War I played right into the hands of the aggressor. Merely by threatening war on a world that shuddered at the possibility, the aggressors succeeded for a long time, cowing the world and thus building up their strength against the time when the peace-loving nations could not and would not make any further concessions to appease them.

When the war did break out, however, the advantages were all with the enemies of civilization. They were prepared to the hilt. The others were not.

IF WAR is to be avoided, the peaceful nations must remain strong. It is an obligation that rests particularly on the United States. It is an obligation we can shirk only by abdicating the responsibility that goes with our power and only by condemning ourselves and mankind to a grim fate.

To be sure, no one can speak with any assurance as to precisely what weapons, what system of training, what degree of mobilization, will be needed in the future to enable America to play its assigned part as one of the great pillars of peace.

But we cannot afford to sit idly by and do nothing pending the time when the problem of how to defend ourselves and how to defend the peace has become clearer. On the contrary, we must develop a defense system that is fluid and flexible.

This is precisely the system urged by President Truman. The kind of universal training he advocates could be adjusted to the changing needs of the changing times. It is the very opposite of the Maginot Line mentality that brought France to ruin. It avoids the perils of militarization. Its greatest advantage is that by providing a pool of men instantly available for advanced training, should the emergency arise when those men are needed, we would not have to wait a year or two years or three before being able to throw our weight into the scales. The fact is there won't be, the next time, any such period of grace.

Communications must carry writer's name and address, though pen names are permitted at the editor's discretion. Letters should be held to not more than 200 words. They are subject to condensation.

Myopic Diplomacy

We are very much disturbed by the apathy and complacency with which our public officials and the press have reacted to the news of the failure of the recent five-power conference of foreign ministers. Such attitudes as, "Oh, this was only an interesting test of conflicting national interests," or "Actually this represents an advancement in international relations" are disturbing, if not terrifying. One is a gross underestimation of the danger of vested national interests. The other is either a deliberate or naive misrepresentation of the facts.

The truth of the matter is that the London conference adjourned without having reached agreement on a single point on its agenda.

Why did it fail? Because of "conflicting national interests"? Or did it fail because of the short-sightedness of those who direct the foreign affairs of the world, who seem blind to the fact that the most fundamental national interest of any nation today must be the preservation of international peace and the establishment of cooperation among peoples?

Can it be that such cooperation is only possible in the cause of war and not in the cause of peace? Can it be that those who are responsible for international affairs have not learned the lessons and significance of six years of war? Why are they reverting to the attitudes and formulas of world diplomacy which have failed time and again for the last 3000 years, each failure resulting in increasingly destructive warfare?

Never before have the peoples of the world been so internationally minded. The average guy from Kansas City, from Kiev, or from Germany, who has "borne the brunt of the battle," and who is footing the bill for this war, has learned to put first things first, to value genuine international cooperation above petty national interests. If one should judge by the results of the London conference, however, neither are the leaders of the world showing sound leadership nor are they utilizing the sound opinions and desires of the common man.

In their preoccupation with intricate juggling of "national interests" and "spheres of influence," world statesmen seem to have lost sight completely of the meaning of the atom bomb. The little guy would like to ask if it would be to our "national interest" to have our cities leveled by atom bombs, let's say, in a war caused by conflicting "spheres of influence." It's about time that leaders quit experimenting in diplomacy at the risk and expense of two billion people.

Why isn't public opinion making itself felt on these points? Every individual who feels the imperatives of the present international situation should get on the ball and sound off.

For our part we wish to state that we deplore the unnecessary failure of the London conference. We demand statesmanship worthy of the sufferings of the last 30 years. Success will insure a grateful posterity; failure may mean no posterity at all.

Cooperative Housing

Because I don't believe that hoped-for progress is being made in arriving at a solution or solutions for what is loosely called the housing problem, I want to bring forward a plan which should meet the needs of many would-be Washington home owners.

What I have in mind would involve an effort to bring about the building of cooperatively owned apartment houses. Such a plan could be made to have more real merit if it was combined with slum clearance. The use of eminent domain would also be necessary.

As a beginning it might be possible to interest veterans who wish to buy or build a home in pooling their home-loan rights under the GI Bill of Rights. Such a group would probably need further aid from FHA or some Federal loan agency.

The initiation of such a program would necessitate a small but rather powerful planning body. Areas to be built over would have to be selected on the basis of the delapidation of the present structures, the nearness to the places of employment of large groups of people, and the suitableness of the ground for the building of rather tall, well-aired structures. As things now stand, there is no well established housing plan that appeals to and is within the reach of the typical white-collared Government clerk such as myself.

To provide healthful, readily accessible housing I feel that the cooperative apartments such as I favor should be built in groups, within 25 blocks of the Capitol.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

President's Message

PRESIDENT TRUMAN in his message to Congress has made a forthright declaration for universal military training.

At one time, according to reliable reports, he contemplated a modified system which would allow for part time training during college years. But further study and the advice of military men convinced him that there could be no halfway measures.

The danger in any proposal for summer and evening training was that a weak compromise would merely result in time wasted all around. If we are to have universal training, and that is the difficult decision now up to Congress, we might as well face it outright.

THE PRESIDENT is insistent, too, that training must apply to all youths, even those who are unfit for combat duty. The latter, he says, can be especially trained in industrial and other essential techniques so important to reenforce the machine of modern war.

This suggests a contradiction that is likely to be aired during the debate in Congress on this far-reaching proposal—it represents a break with our past, and there is no concealing that fact. The President stresses the need for the kind of scientific training that will keep this country ahead of the world. But in the light of the long and intensive study necessary for modern science, many will ask what a year's interruption is likely to mean at the critical age of 18.

Challenging those who say that universal training will undermine our democracy, President Truman is on sounder ground. There is good historical precedent for democracy that incorporates universal training for all male citizens.

Sweden has had such a system for many years and the Swedes have steadily moved toward a broader democratic base for their society. Moreover, the fact that Sweden had 600,000 trained reserves under arms through most of the war may had something to do with keeping the Nazis from attacking that country at one or two critical moments.

The soundest argument the President makes is that next time we shall not have two years of grace in which to prepare. As General Marshall made clear in his report the other day, those years of grace, when we were altogether helpless, we owe to the courage and the stamina of the British and the Russians.

This argument the President buttresses with the plea that America must stand before the world strong and not weak. That is overwhelmingly true; so true, that surely no one can take issue with it. Our strength is essential to a stable world. The speed with which we have been taking apart our military power is dangerous and terribly ill-advised.

The question, however, of what constitutes strength in the world of the atomic bomb and the radio-guided missile is one which is likely to be debated at length. The military men profess to know, just as they did after the last war. But the Germans forged new weapons and new uses for old weapons which swept away France's costly and antiquated defense system.

What is profoundly disturbing about the President's message is the almost defeatist tone with which he seems to accept a "next time." Discussing the atomic bomb, he accepts the easy platitude of the military that "every weapon will eventually bring some counter-defense against it."

Theoretically, of course, this is true. There was a defense for the bomber plane. But, as has been said so often, between the defense and the offense we have destroyed most of Europe and a good bit of Asia. The experts who testified on the atomic bomb repeated over and over that even a near perfect defense would let in enough bombs to wipe out great industrial centers.

WHAT IS MOST disturbing is the President's half-hearted reassurance that the "better answers"—"the kind of tried and tested world cooperation which will make for peace and harmony among all nations—are in the "better days to come." This country, says the President, will continue to strive to reach that period quickly. He adds that it has not yet arrived, and he seems to hold out little hope that it is even on the way.

To speak frankly, it sounds almost as though President Truman had fallen under the influence of those military men who constantly air their conviction that another war in the near future is inevitable and we had best remain prepared to the hilt.

Where is the President who spoke in Kansas City with impromptu courage for a world state without sham or deception? Where is the President who spoke at San Francisco with vision and foresight?

It is hard to find any trace of that President in the message to Congress. Leadership, the kind of leadership the world so desperately needs, is not here.

Congress has been delaying many vital decisions. There is a sense of drift in Washington.

Now here is a new decision that Congress should face up to as quickly as possible. Perhaps universal training is the answer to the military security of a great democracy. But as phrased in the Truman message, it seems a dusty answer that yields so little to the needs of this hour.

Today and Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

The Hard Way

LIPPMANN

THE BURDEN of proof is, quite clearly, upon those of us who favor compulsory military training in time of peace. It is asking a lot of a young man that he should interrupt his education, or put off earning his living, for one year. The years between 18 and 20 are very precious years in a young man's life. He and his parents must be shown that this sacrifice is necessary, and then that the Government has a program for the training which will not waste his time.

The supporters of the plan, on the other hand, have a right to assume that the opposition will consent if they can prove that it is necessary to the security and to the vital interests of the United States. That the proposal is new, that it is disagreeable, inconvenient, expensive, is not a sufficient objection if, without a citizenry trained to arms, we shall be much less able to prevent war, and much less sure of winning it if we do not prevent it.

THERE IS no doubt at all, it seems to me, that—for the post-war period which may last a generation—military training will make it much more likely that we can prevent a third world war. It is, of course, by no means the only thing we need in order to prevent war, but without it all our other means of preventing war will be ever so much less effective. For without military training there is, as General Marshall and others have proved conclusively, no way in which our military power can be mobilized quickly. Yet no aggressor, no disturber of the peace, has ever been deterred by potential power which its takes years to mobilize as actual power.

Every scheme of aggression is based on the idea that it will be successful before the victims realize what is going to happen, and are awake, and can collect the force to resist. For no one in any world war, not Napoleon, not the Kaiser, not Hitler, not the Japanese war lords, ever supposed he could defeat all the nations of the world, or even some of the great ones, in a conflict where all were fully prepared. The essence of any scheme of world conquest is that the aggressor who is fully prepared will be able to overwhelm the other nations quickly, because they are unprepared, and separately, because they are disunited.

NO FUTURE aggressor will be deterred by remembering that eventually the United States can become a mighty military power. He will always expect to win before that miracle takes place, and in both of the world wars of this century the aggressors came very near to doing just that. In this war they would almost certainly have succeeded but for the spiritual fortitude of leaders like Churchill, Roosevelt, Stalin, and De Gaulle, who evoked a will to resist that was beyond all normal calculation. The truth of the matter is that our victory was snatched from the jaws of defeat, and we were brought to this terrible peril because the United Nations were not united, and none of them was well prepared for war.

During the dangerous and difficult years which lie ahead of us—the years when the world must be pacified in order that there may eventually be peace—our own influence in the world will be directly related to our actual and immediate—not our potential and eventual—power. In these dangerous years the paramount question will be whether or not a new combination is to be formed for the purpose of making still another attempt to overthrow the civilized order to which we belong, of which we are a principal defender. It is the task of diplomacy, acting through the United Nations Organization and through our alliances, to deal with such a new combination at the first sign that it is being formed. If we are well armed, diplomacy can do this without resorting to arms. If we are disarmed, our verbal protests will be disregarded, and in the end we shall have to fight.

THIS, I believe, is the fundamental and compelling reason why military training is, at this time, a necessary sacrifice in order to achieve peace. In any event, it is on this ground that we must debate the measure. We must invite those who are unconvinced or opposed to examine with us whether these propositions are true or false, namely:

1. That American military power cannot be quickly mobilized unless there is a reserve of young men who have already had basic military training.

2. That our influence in preventing another war will be measured by our actual, not our potential, military power.

3. That if we fail to prevent another war, only the capacity to develop our military power quickly can, with the modern offensive weapons, provide adequate defense against defeat.

If these three propositions are true, the case for military training is proved. I believe they are true, and that reasonable men will find that the evidence and logic which support them are conclusive.

I WISH it were otherwise, and that we dared to think that we can return to the easy, carefree, happy go lucky ways which were the birthright of all Americans in the days before the two world wars of this century. We cannot think that. We dare not be guided by our wishes. Those easy days are over. Destiny has placed upon us the heavy burdens and the awful responsibilities—but also the grandeur and the glory—which are the lot of any nation which rises to the position where it holds the keys to war and to peace.

I know that we are not in the mood just now to live at so high a level. There are few among us who are not weary from the anxieties and the effort of this war; few who do not long to relax in private tranquillity and quiet, and to find surcease from the need to think and care about the stubborn troubled affairs of the great world. This feeling, so easily understandable because all of us share it, and not the arguments against military training, is the real reason why the measure is difficult to enact. But we have to master our own feelings.

For if we try, each of us individually, to enjoy his private peace and let the world and the future go hang, we shall not enjoy any peace—even the most private—very long.

Picketing Violence Charged In SKF Suit for 2 Million

Philadelphia, Oct. 24 (AP).—Charging violence in picketing, SKF Industries, Inc., today filed suit for two million dollars damages against Local 2898, United Steelworkers of America (CIO) and seven of its officials.

It also asked Common Pleas Court to grant an injunction against the local and officials, prohibiting them from mass picketing of the three strikebound SKF plants.

The move into court was made after SKF strikers and police again clashed. The pickets, reinforced by helmeted shipyard workers and carrying American flags, turned back automobiles of company officials trying to enter the plant.

To Discuss Labor Holiday

Harry Block, president of the Philadelphia Industrial Union Council (CIO), announced the council would meet to discuss a proposal for a general labor holiday in Philadelphia in sympathy with SKF strikers.

CIO spokesmen said a general holiday would make 250,000 idle in Philadelphia and adjacent counties, including Camden, N. J.

Attorney Frank B. Murdoch, jr., who filed suit for the company, said police were unable to control the strikers who, he said, refused "even to let the people in to maintain the heat."

Employs 3000 Workers

SKF employs about 3000 persons in the three plants.

Murdoch said a hearing on the suit will be held Monday before President Judge Frank Smith of Common Pleas Court.

Officials named in the suit were: Stephen Root, local president; Joseph P. Cannon, vice president; Gerald P. Kennedy, financial secretary; Helen Hawes, treasurer; George Hart, recording secretary; L. Barth, chairman of the grievance committee, and Bernard Lehman, committee secretary.

The complaint contends the strike is a violation of the no-strike and no-lockout provisions of the union-company contract expiring December 2.

Union spokesmen said the dispute arose over the company's failure to observe seniority rights.

Adult Evening Classes Held in Montgomery

An evening education program for adults sponsored by the Montgomery County Board of Education is now in progress at four schools in the county. At Bethesda Chevy Chase High, Montgomery Blair High School, Takoma Park Junior High School and Richard Montgomery High School, classes are being held in such varied subjects as Spanish, public speaking, woodworking, are, health training, typing, blueprint reading and drafting, shorthand and practical mathematics.

Marine Corps Cuts Discharge Score to 50

The Marine Corps today cut its discharge score to 50 points for marines and to 20 points for woman marines, effective November 1. The present scores are 60 and 25.

Headquarters said that under present plans the entire Marine Corps Reserve would be demobilize dby September 1, 1946.

Approximately 62,688 additional enlisted men will be eligible for release under the new cut. No estimate of the number of officers affected was available. Of the total, some 44,729 are on overseas duty and 18,959 in the United States.

Meanwhile, Army Air Forces personnel discharges from 35 United States separation centers reached a total of 202,119 Tuesday, it was announced yesterday.

Tuesday discharges totaled 9829, including 7611 enlisted men and 2218 officers. Still on the October separation quota are 17,488 officers and men.

Yugoslav Heir Whoops It Up At His Baptism

London, Oct. 24 (AP).—Naked and yelling, the infant Crown Prince of Yugoslavia was baptized in Westminster Abbey today before kings, queens, princesses and patriarchs.

Princess Elizabeth, heir apparent to the British throne, was his godmother and King George VI was his godfather.

The 3-month-old son of King Peter and Queen Alexandra, barred from their Balkan thrones by the displeasure of Marshal Tito, was immersed three times in warm water and he did not like it.

His lusty cries rang through the ancient cathedral until Princess Elizabeth took him in her arms and quieted him. He slept through most of the Orthodox ceremony in the arms of the Princess, but awakened with a yell when Elizabeth handed him to King George. The Monarch, arrayed in an ornate naval uniform, carried him three times around the font before the bearded patriarch, V. H. Cavrilo, anointed the Crown Prince with Holy Oil.

The child was named Alexander for his grandfather, Alexander I, who was assassinated at Marseille in one of the preludes to the past World War. King George, in becoming the godfather, fulfilled a promise made to King Peter when he was best man at the Yugoslav monarch's wedding.

Among those in the cathedral were King George of Greece, the Duchess of Kent, Princess Aspasia of Greece, and Princess Helen of Serbia.

OPA Sets Date Today to End Shoe Rationing

By the Associated Press

Official discussions of when to end shoe rationing narrowed tentatively yesterday to a choice of October 28—next Sunday—or November 1.

It was learned, too, that the OPA will announce tomorrow a four-point cut in the ration cost of butter. The new rate of eight points a pound will go into effect Sunday.

A Government official who asked that his name not be used said that OPA and the War Production Board expect today to pick the date for ending shoe rationing.

It was understood the program might be terminated before the weekend if word that the end is imminent leaked out.

The October 28 date is favored by those who want the program terminated over a weekend so that merchants can prepare for unrestricted buying. Those urging November 1 would like to have rationing end at the start of a calendar month.

Plans to end rationing were drawn when a survey showed that shoe production now is at a rate of about 28,000,000 pairs a month, only slightly less than before the war. This compares with a rate of about 23 million pairs at the end of September.

Meanwhile, there were prospects for an end of passenger tire rationing late in December. Government rubber officials said the program could end then if production meets schedules. They said truck tires might become ration free late next month.

Rosslyn Firm Holds Safe Driving Lead

For the second successive month, the Noland Co. of Rosslyn is leading 24 other large fleet operators in the Arlington Safety Council's eighth annual safety contest.

The company has recorded 100,425 accident-free miles during the five months of the current contest. Other leaders are American Oil Co. of Rosslyn, with 99,059 accident-free miles, and Congressional School, with 76,080 miles without an accident. Mileage of all fleets totaled 2,194,283 miles. William K. MacMahon, contest chairman, said the accident rate this year is higher than that recorded for last year. So far this year there have been 1.22 accidents per 100,000 miles, while last year there were .803 accidents per 100,000 miles.

Meanwhile, the safety council group commended the Arlington County Board for securing the closing of the hunting season in Ar-

E. J. Boothby Is New Head Of Gas Ass'n

By S. Oliver Goodman

Newly elected president of the American Gas Association is Everett J. Boothby, vice president and general manager of the Washington Gas Light Co. The trade association which he heads represents the five-billion-dollar gas industry and its membership comprises leading gas utility companies and gas appliance manufacturers in the United States and Canada.

Mr. Boothby

Mr. Boothby, prominent in business circles here, is vice president of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association, a board member of the Washington Building Congress and a trustee of the Better Business Bureau. He has been associated with the gas company here since 1932. He entered the gas utility field in 1922 with the New England gas companies under the management of Stone & Webster.

Active in American Gas Association affairs, he is also chairman of its committee on domestic gas research, chairman of its manufactured gas department and a member of its postwar planning committee.

Other officers of the A. G. A. elected yesterday in New York included: R. H. Hargrove, vice president, United Gas Pipe Line Co., Shreveport, La., first vice president; Hudson W. Reed, president, the Philadelphia Gas Works Co., second vice president; and Edward F. Barrett, president, Long Island Lighting Co., treasurer.

Business Briefs Of D. C. Interest

Employes "Dividend" Voted

All regular employes of Harry Kaufman, Inc., will receive three weeks' extra pay this year, it was announced at the annual dinner meeting of the store's Mutual Aid Association. This "extra dividend," according to Vice President David Wise, is in addition to the usual Christmas bonus of two weeks' pay.

F. H. Saunders was elected president of the aid association, L. Mintz, vice president; H. J. Klein, secretary, and J. H. Huck, treasurer.

Controllers Hear Kayser

America's diplomatic position at the peace table is being injured by 'too fast 'withdrawal of our armed forces, Dr. Elmer L. Kayser, dean of George Washington University, said.

Addressing a meeting of the District of Columbia Control of the Controllers Institute of America in the Carlton Hotel, Dr. Kayser called for a 'forthright statement' by the Government of its commitments in the world today and for a definition of our zone of influence. This, he said, would make possible intelligent action with military training for youths.

High Officials to Speak

Eugene P. Thomas, president of the National Foreign Trade Council, announced yesterday speakers at the thirty-second convention of the council November 12, 13 and 14 will include Fred M. Vinson, Secretary of the Treasury; Henry A. Wallace, Secretary of Commerce, and Spruille Braden, Assistant Secretary of State.

De Soto Dealers to Meet

De Soto auto dealers of Washington, Maryland and Virginia will be guests of the L. P. Steuart, Inc., distributors, at a meeting November 1 in the Mayflower Hotel. Among speakers will be Jack Welham, regional manager, and Charles Leary, district manager of De Soto division of the Chrysler Motor Car Co.

League to Elect Tuesday

Leaders in Government and business circles will attend the annual election and dinner meeting of the District of Columbia Building and Loan League at the Mayflower next Tuesday.

According to Clarence E. Kefauver, retiring president, a reception in honor of outgoing officers will be held in the Pan American room, prior to the dinner.

Principal speaker will be Donald F. Hobart, director of research, Curtis Publishing Co.

Alexanldria Chapter Receives UDC Award; Election Today

Silver loving cups and cash prizes were awarded yesterday at sessions of the fiftieth annual convention of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, Virginia Division, at the George Mason Hotel in Alexandria.

Alexandria's chapter, one of 135 units represented by the approximately 150 delegates, won the cup for placing the largest number of books dealing with the south in libraries. The Richmond Chapter won the second cup for reporting the best historical work for perpetuation of information and memorials to the Confederacy.

Tying for first place in writing the best history of the Virginia Division were Mrs. Charles E. Bolling and Miss Anne V. Mann who received $30 prizes. Second prize of $10 went to Mrs. Thomas E. Gravely of Martinsville. Honorable mention was accorded an 84-year-old member, Mrs. Alice S. Thompson of Tazewell.

Scrap Book A Winner

A special award for the most outstanding contribution of time and effort beyond the call of duty, for compiling a scrap book on "Virginia in Warld War II," was accorded Miss Catherine T. Lynch of the Janet Randolph Chapter, Richmond. Her book will be placed in the Virginia State Library for the use of historical writers, it was announced.

The following winners were selected by anonymous judges: $10 to Mrs. M. L. Overstreet of Bedford for her essay on "Richard Kirkland, the Angel of Marye's Heights;" $5 to the Blacksburg chapter for the best chapter yearbook; $5 to the Hanover chapter for doing the best work for Confederate educational work in schools, and $5 to the Charlottesville chapter for sending the best material to the Virginia Division Archives in Richmond.

Districts Report

Last night the chapter presidents' dinner was held in the Lee Room of the George Mason Hotel with Mrs. James M. Graham, first vice president of the division, presiding. Mrs. Clyde Campbell Lamond, jr., of Alexandria was vocal soloist. Reports were made by leaders of the six districts of the State organization.

This morning at 9 a. m. during the business session at the hotel, new State officers will be elected. Mrs. James B. Morgan of Roanoke is chairman of the nominating committee which has prepared a slate for balloting.

Members of the nominating committee include the six district representatives: Mrs. Clarence Kearfott of Bristol, Va., first district; Mrs. William P. Taum of New Castle, Va., second; Mrs. E. H. Floyd of Chatham, third; Mrs. Jesse W. Richards of Marshall, fourth; Mrs. Louise Medlin of West Point, fifth, and Mrs. John H. Carter of Norfolk, sixth.

Md. Typhoid Attributed to Impure Milk

Typhoid fever in Maryland could have been prevented by milk pasteurization, Dr. R. H. Riley, head of the State Department of Health, told 85 dairy inspectors and technicians as the three-day conference opened at the University of Maryland yesterday.

Dr. Riley asserted that typhoid has been reduced since carriers became aware that, as food handlers, they menace society. Danger still lies, he said, in food handlers unaware they carry diseases.

About 5 per cent of typhoid fever victims remain chronic carriers, he said. The 216 typhoid carriers known to the State Health Department, caused more than 530 cases of typhoid before the source of infection was discovered, the inspectors were told.

Rewards for bettering milk handling technique have been an incentive for improving sanitation, W. W. Burdetter of the District Health Department said. Premiums have been paid by distributors to farmers and milk plant workers.

To wipe out mastitis, which causes heavy milk production loss in dairy herds, dairymen, milk plants and health officials must cooperate, Ivan Marty, Baltimore Health Department milk control director, said.

A warning against careless handling of DDT was given by Dr. E. N. Cory, head of the university entomology department. Feed, hay and water, as well as feeding areas, should be protected when using DDT for control of pests.

Probers Ask To See Baker Radio Script

By the United Press

Representative Hugh Delacy, (D., Wash.), said today that the House Unamerican Activities Committee had made an unsuccessful attempt to obtain the script of radio comedian Phil Baker's "Take It or Leave It" program of September 30.

He explained, however, that the program is impromptu and therefore the radio network had no script to send to the committee.

"It is a question and answer program," he said in a speech prepared for floor delivery. "What 64 dollar question do you suppose it was which drew the attention of the Rankin Committee?

"Phil Baker asked what sort of unity was good for the American people. A Mr. LaValle, said to have represented a Council for American Unity, answered that unity among all the people of America, of people of different races and different national origins was good for America."

A committee spokesman said the committee requested the Phil Baker script but "not because of Phil Baker."

"We were interested in this man LaValle and his association," he said. "We just wanted to see what kind of an association it is."

Delacy was one of several House members who participated in a one-hour floor protest against the committee's recent request for the scripts of several radio commentators.

Delacy said that in asking for the scripts the committee was following the "smear and fear method for which Martin Dies became notorious." His allusion was to former Representative Martin Dies, (D., Tex.), former chairman of the committee.

Dr. Douglass Host

President Paul F. Douglass of American University will entertain at dinner this evening at his residence on the campus, when his guests will be delegates attending the meeting of the United Council of Church Women. The group was entertained at tea yesterday at the White House by President Truman.

Alexandria's YWCA Lists 517 Members

Membership in the newly organized Alexandria Young Women's Christian Association which is holding a general meeting tonight at 8 p. m., in the Virginia Electric & Power Co. auditorium, has reached 517 women, for the largest single organization in Alexandria.

Mrs. Helen Kane Humphrey, chairman of the board of directors, credited Mrs. James L. Scott, membership chairman, with excellent work in the drive still in progress for forming a large "Y."

The total includes 309 electoral members, 27 associate, and 181 in the Phyllis Wheatley branch for Negroes. The organization's campaign for $50,000 to establish a main headquarters and Negro branch building has reached $35,000. Miss Alice H. Whitton is fund chairman, and Mrs. Lillian Coates is contacting church groups and providing speakers for their meetings in gaining support for the "Y."

Entertain Patients

The rehabilitation committee, under the direction of Mrs. Eleanor Ascher of Sergeant Jasper Unit, No. 13, American Legion Auxiliary, entertained 34 patients in Ward 11-B, Walter Reed Hospital, this past week. This is the first time that members of the American Legion Auxiliary have been allowed to entertain in the wards at Walter Reed. The entertainment was furnished by Ray Howard and his troupe.

Weekly visits are made to Ward D at Mount Alto Hospital by members of the unit.

Three persons living at 1806 C st. ne. reported to police yesterday the theft of war stamps, a watch, and cash valued at $109.

Anthony Biddle Marriage Ended By Paris Divorce

Paris, Oct. 23.—The marriage of Colonel Anthony J. Drexel Biddle, jr., to Mrs. Margaret A. Thompson Schulze Biddle was dissolved on Monday by divorce here.

Biddle was the American Ambassador to Poland when Germany invaded that country and throughout most of the war served as Minister or Ambassador in London to the exiled governments of Poland, Czechoslovakia, Norway, the Netherlands, Belgium, Luxembourg, Yugoslavia and Greece.

Mrs. Biddle has been director of American Red Cross clubs for nurses and Wacs in London.

'Need for Time Cited in Drive At Alexandria

The need for more time in which to obtain complete coverage of Alexandria for the Community War Fund drive was cited yesterday by representatives attending the board of directors meeting for the entire area in Washington.

Alexandria is still below the halfway mark after almost a month of canvassing, and officials admitted that with an inadequate number of volunteer workers in addition to a drag of apparent lethargy in some divisions, the campaign has not produced momentum until the last week.

Figures to date show only 49.6 of the total $90,000 quota has been raised, the sum of $4,727.14, and only three of the 12 divisions have topped their goals. The residential division, which has a quota of $42,500 as the largest item, has raised less than one-fourth, although the chairman, Harry W. Bendall, has offered certificates worth $150 on new Pontiac cars plus two $25 cash prizes to spur collections.

The Alexandria fund's sixth report meeting for captains and workers fill be held tonight in the auditorium of the G. C. Murphy Co. store at 620 King st. Officials are confident collections will take the drive over the halfway mark, but are emphasizing to workers that much greater results must be achieved if the campaign is not to fail.

O'Conor Indorses Transfer of USES Back to States

Baltimore, Oct. 23 (AP).—Governor O'Conor, reasserting his belief that employment offices should be maintained by the States, called for their immediate transfer from Federal hands in an address prepared for delivery tonight before the Interstate Conference of Employment Security Agencies.

"There is abundant reason why this transfer should be made," the Chief Executive declared. "Production is no longer planned from Washington. The location of new plants, or the conversion and expansion of old, are no longer matters of primary concern in Washington.

"We no longer face the problem of critical labor areas, which once required centralized authority."

Brazil Still Plans Presidential Vote

Rio de Janeiro, Oct. 23 (U.P.).—Presidential elections will be held on December 2, as originally scheduled, War Minister Gen. Aurelio Goes Monteiro said tonight, stressing that such was the desire of the armed forces.

Previously, it was reported that President Getulio Vargas was prepared to issue a decree cancelling the presidential elections, calling instead for the election of a constituent convention, and to hand over the government to a triumvirate of the war, navy and air ministers.

Canada Disagrees With Britain on Aiding 'Have-Nots'

Quebec, Oct. 23 (INS).— Canadian and British representatives at the United Nations food conference differed today on methods for distribution of peacetime food surpluses to "have not" nations.

W. J. Parker of Canada urged immediate world collaboration and marketing through international commodity agreements. W. K. Duckham of the United Kingdom proposed instead that distribution of surpluses be tackled through full employment, contending this would create purchasing power. International commodity agreements could come later, he said, and in the meantime the question of surpluses should be studied.

Paul Negrier of France told both groups: "The history of the world is the history of surpluses and we know that this history of surpluses is the history of war."

"Holds Its Head High In Any Company"

CHR. HEURICH BREWING CO., Washington, D. C.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

The future of the All-American Conference as a major league rival of a National Football League is brighter today. Its Los Angeles franchise, apparently derelict following reports last week that Actor Don Ameche had withdrawn his support, is still in solid hands.

Povich

National League Commissioner Elmer Leyden gave the new league the brush-off several months ago when his skepticism took the form of a crack that "they haven't even got a football yet." But with Ameche reiterating that he is in pro football to stay, and announcing that Bing Crosby, Louis B. Mayer and rich Mr. Benjamin F. Lindheimer were among the stockholders in his team, there probably will be enough resources to buy a football.

The All-American Conference which asked for a working agreement with the National League only to get the cold stare, is apparently prepared to fight the N. L. with money, and for that purpose it is well equipped. Club for club, the new Conference has far greater financial resources than the National League.

Players won't be one of the new league's problems. They've already signed a half dozen stars who were technically the property of the National League, by the simple expedient of making them more attractive offers. The National League has a rule that metes out a five-year suspension to any player who jumps to another league, but that's a joke. It's like a fellow who takes a better job being suspended by his old employer for five years.

The All-American Conference is getting smart direction from the smartest football promoter in the country. He's Arch Ward, who is telling the league where to put its franchises. Ward will soon announce that the new league will have a club in Baltimore, and there is still a high possibility that th league will invade New York.

Dan Topping, who owns the Brooklyn franchise in the NL and doesn't have a Brooklyn park to play in, wants to mave his club to Yankee Stadium. But Tim Mara, whose Giants play at the Polo Grounds, claims exclusive NL territorial rights in New York, and doesn't want to let Topping in. Thus far, Mara has refused to give Topping's team any of tthe choice New York dates, and Topping yet may go over to the All-American Conference with a team in Yankee Stadium.

When the National League becomes properly impressed with the new league's determination to stay in business as a second major league, Layden's outfit will probably act in a hurry to make peace. Otherwise it's going to be a costly experience for both leagues which will be compelled to bid against each other for the better players.

National League clubs have been riding a gravy train to date in the matter of signing players. They eliminated competition among themselves by installing a draft system which parceled players out to the clubs by lot. College stars got no bonus for signing and were compelled to play with the clubs that drew them, or face a boycott from the league.

With te bidding now open as a result of the Conference's invasion of the pro football field, the graduating players are in a position to accept the best offers. The Conference owners, who have never gotten players for nothing, are not spoiled in that respect, and they may be more determined to grab off the best ones.

Th long-range plans of Arch Ward call for the installation of a Conference team in Washington as soon as the National Stadium is completed here. He already has financial backing for a Washington franchise, and believes that the new league can compete with the Redskins here simply by assembling a better football team.

Ward also controls the Chicago All-Star game in which the pro-league champions annually meet the College All-Americans. To date, the National League title holders have been cut in on that juicy gate, but if the NL continues to battle Ward's new-league project, he would replace it in the All-Star game with the Conference's champions.

The new league will start to operate in 1946 and the first test will come when the two leagues start bidding for this year's crop of graduaing college stars. That's when the NL will probably discover that the Conference isn't fooling.

Purdue Tackle Honored

Ex-Marine Hughes Named Nation's 'Lineman of Week'

New York, Oct. 24 (AP).—Tom Hughes, 220-pound Marine dischargee whose rugged play featured Purdue's surprising 35-to-13 victory over Ohio State last Saturday, has been named "Lineman of the Week," in an Associated Press poll of the Nation's sport writers.

The big tackle of the Boilermakers drew the votes for his outstanding work in opening holes for the Purdue backs, as well as for kicking three extra points, recovering an Ohio State fumble and blocking a punt that gave Purdue a safety.

Pressing Hughes for honors were a pair of Southeast Conference centers, Hugh Bowers of Tulane and Vaughan Mancha of Alabama, and a Wisconsin tackle, Clarence Esser, who recovered four Illinois fumbles.

Coach Monk Simons of Tulane said "Bowers played one of the most aggressive defensive games I've seen this year. Unless two blockers took him out he was in on almost every tackle." Mancha was credited with sparking Alabama to its 25-7 win over Tennessee.

Hubert Bechtol, All-American end of the University of Texas, was voted the outstanding lineman of the week in the Southwest Conference, with Leonard Dickey, 27-year-old Texas Aggie tackle, a close second for his fine defensive play. Bechtol caught two touchdown passes against Arkansas.

Virginia Poly's upset of Maryland was largely credited to the exceptional plav of tackle Ross Orr.

Other linemen who received one or more votes were:

Ends: Bob Carley, Minnesota; Bob Skoglund, Notre Dame; Bob Ravensberg Indiana; Bill McPeak, Pitt; Dick Duden and Leon Bramlett, both Navy; Jim Dieckelman, Holy Cross; Neill Armstrong, Oklahoma Aggies.

Tackles: John Cooke, TCU; Tom Dean, SMU.

Guards: Al Sparlis, UCLA; Jim Groh, Colgate; Howard Shofner, New London Submarine Base; Les Bingaman, Illinois; George Hills, Georgia Tech; A. A. Macaluso, Rice.

Centers: Frank Sniadack, Columbia; Richard Johnson, Baylor; Laurie Mauss, Utah.

Richmond, Va., Oct. 24 (AP).—Ed (Porky) Oliver, first of the Nation's top golf professionals called by the draft, has been honorably discharged by the Army and will return to the professional tournament trail in the $10,000 Richmond Open golf tournament here November 2, 3 and 4.

V.P.I. Expects To Be in Top Shape for Va.

Blacksburg, Va., Oct. 24 (AP).—Although four linemen suffered minor injuries as Virginia Tech downed Maryland last weekend, the Gobbler squad is expected to be in top shape for its clash with the undefeated University of Virginia eleven Saturday at Victory Stadium, Roanoke.

Frank Ballard and Al Klele, bulky tackles, Pat Denardo, a center, and Johnny Bushkar, a guard, have been excused from contact drills during the squad workouts because of their ailments.

Ballard injured his shoulder and Klele, Denardo and Bushkar are nursin gbruised ankles. All four should be ready for the Cavalier game.

Coach Macauley McEver announced he will add two new faces to his starting team Saturday when he calls on Bill Hegamyer and Bill Hubble to open at the end positions.

Herndon Opens With First Eleven

The first football team to represent Herndon High in the school's history will open its season October 26 against Leesburg High at Leesburg.

Coached by Paul Vespa, the Atoms have carded four games so far. Ralph Gentry and Dick Lloyd have been elected cocaptains.

Probable starting lineup for the Leesburg contest is: Gentry and Isaac Thomas, ends; John Woody and Frank Sprouse, tackles; Porter Atchison and Larry Hogan, guards; Larry (Boo) Pearson, center; Bob Gray, quarterback; Dale Lowe and Sonny Poland, halfbacks; Joe Ashwell, fullback.

Bainbridge Looks To Unbeaten Record

Bainbridge, Md., Oct. 24 (AP).—The tub-thumpers at Bainbridge Naval Training Center began to talk today of another undefeated football season for the Commodores.

Optimism was rampant after last Sunday's 27-0 triumph over the Camp Lee Travelers. For the coming Sunday, the Commodores are pointing to their twenty-first straight victory at the expense of Camp Detrick of Frederick, Md.

'Skins' Akins Leads N.F.L. In Running

By Al Costello
Post Staff Editor

Frank Akins, to the utter surprise, even amazement of everyone except himself, today is the leading ground gainer in the National Football League.

The 5 ft. 11 in. Redskin fullback, who came into pro ranks via Washington State, has piled up the impressive total of 290 yards in 53 rushes in three games, an average of 5.5 yards per try.

Behind the official announcement by the official scorer of the NFL in Chicago yesterday, lies the story of a fellow who refused to be kicked around by adversity and who not only took the bull of bad luck by the horns but threw the critter out of the ball park in the same motion.

Akin's Story Well Known

The story of Akins is pretty well known: how he almost cashed in his checks last year; submitted to a double mastoid operation that pulled him through; how he came back last year in mid-season and, not without a certain amount of trepidation, insisted on getting back into the lineup.

This year his especially built helmet protects him. He started slowly and even those close to the club shook their heads in the belief the illness and subsequent operation had taken the spark out of the fellow who once had potential greatness stamped all over him.

Everybody except Akins.

He never faltered nor did he lose confidence in himself simply because he refused to believe he wasn't a big-league pro football player. During the exhibition season he flashed the speed and power that was to play havoc with the favored Philadelphia Eagles in Chicago when he almost single-handedly ran the Redskins to their winning touchdown over the Chicago Bears, 14-7.

Turned Him Loose Sunday

Sunday they turned him loose. And Mr. Akins had the answers—all of 'em. A total of 168 yards in 24 tries. A 7.00 per-try average.

Behind the Redskin mail carrier are such backs as Steven Van Buren, of the Eagle; Johnny Martin, Johnny Grigas and Pug Manders, of the Yanks; Tom Colella, Jim Gillette, Fred Gehrke and Don Greenwood, of the Rams; Steve Filipowicz and Gary Famiglietti and Harry Margarita of the Bears.

Mr. Akins, it seems, has arrived.

It is the first time since 1939 the Redskins have had a player leading the league in ground gaining. Then it was Andy Farkas.

And it is also the first time since the Redskins began that they have the best 1-2 punch in pro ranks. Sammy Baugh, as usual, again tops the aerial artists with 42 completions in 66 attempts for a .636 average, but Redskin officials have entered a protest, claiming the figures do not do exactly right by little Sammy and they are being checked. Sid Luckman, of the Bears, is in second place with a .545 average.

The Redksins continued working on defensive tactics yesterday as they prepared for Sunday's donnybrook with the New York Giants at the Polo Grounds. Les Dye, "Mr. Sticky Fingers" the end, tried his hand at a defensive halfback spot and showed up well and may be used there Sunday when Arnie Herber starts tossing Sunday.

Jack Keenan, former University of South Carolina star who was with the club all of last year, yesterday was released after all other NFL clubs waived on him, cutting the squad down to 31, two under the legal league limit.

Fund for Hero Poschner Passes $9000 Mark

Atlanta, Oct. 24 (AP).—Contributions to a testimonial fund being raised for Lieut. George Poschner, ex-University of Georgia football star and war hero who lost both legs in action, have passed the $9000 mark.

Heading today's list was $100 from a man in Lagrange given "in memory of my grandson." Contributions, limited to the city and State for the first two days, are now coming in from all over the country.

The Atlanta Journal sports department, acting as a clearing house for the drive, said no definite amount or time limit have been set.

The largest gift received thus far was $1000 from the Columbus (Ga.) Monday Morning Quarterback Club.

Tips From an Old Master

Penn's 'Kiddie Korps' Proves Almost as Old as Navy Eleven

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 24 (AP).—A football fan with a yen for statistics came up today with facts and figures to disprove any impression that Pennsylvania would field a team of youngsters against 11 "old men" when Penn tangles with Navy in Philadelphia Saturday.

The Penn team, referred to as the "Kiddie Korps" and "Teen-agers" because of their supposedly tender years, actually will be but six months younger than the Tars' starting line-up, the Figure Filbert stated. Average age of the Quakers is 19 years and 6 months, and of Navy 20 years and 1 month.

In fact, the Middie mathematician pointed out, Navy's starting backfield will be younger than that of their opponents.

Lines About Even

Penn's line has also been touted as being excessively heavy, but it will actually outweigh the Sailors' forward wall by but a single pound—201 to 200.

Navy's No. 1 defensive backfield was posted in the coaches' room today—and therein lies a sensational "rags to riches" story.

Myron Gerber, former Bullis Prep and Washington (D. C.) high school star, who three weeks ago was a member of the Navy plebe squad, was today nominated as the starting fullback on the Tar team that will take the field against Penn Saturday.

Starred at Home

When Navy traveled to Durham to take on Duke three weeks ago, Gerber was merely another yearling who stayed in Annapolis—but missing out on the North Carolina trip proved to be the break required to start him on the way to stardom.

While the Middie varsity trounced Duke, the plebes tackled Greenbrier Military School—and Gerber's sensational play in that contest won him a trial with the big boys the following Monday. And today the 19-year-old back from Alexandria, Va., supplanted George Sundheim, star at Indiana last year, in Navy's No. 1 backfield.

Navy today ran through light defensive scrimmages, with the Jayvees using Pennsylvania tactics against the varsity.

Ft. Monroe Nurses Injuries, Cancels Two Grid Games

Fort Monroe, Va., Oct. 24 (AP).—The Fort Monroe Gunners have canceled their next two football games because of a number of injured players, Phil Davis, athletic director, has announced.

The canceled games include contests with Edgewood Arsenal, Md., Saturday, and with Camp Bainbridge, Md., there November 4.

Davis said the Gunners plan to finish their schedule and will play Edgewood Arsenal November 10, giving Edgewood the choice of playing at Fort Monroe or on the Maryland team's field. A game with Camp Detrick, Md., is slated for November 17 and Davis said a Thanksgiving game will be added to the schedule if a suitable opponent is found.

The Fort Monroe players were hurt in Fort Monroe's 40-0 loss to Camp Peary and in the 7-0 loss to Oak Grove, N. C., Marines last Friday. The Gunners have dropped five games and have no victories.

Play Goes On

Loss of Limbs No Handicap To These GIs

Temple, Tex., Oct. 24 (AP).—Baseball on wheels have ben developed by war veterans here who refuse to give up their favorite sport just because they have lost arms or legs.

The game has been altered some, but it's still baseball, and other wounded soldiers at McCloskey General Hospital gather around to for man enthusiastic rooting section.

Eight men, seven in wheelchairs and one on cruthese, are the players. The diamond is a tennis court. The ball is a volley ball, but a regulation bat is used.

Because of the limited space and the room needed to maneuver the chairs, only four men play on a side.

They become so interested in the game they often forget their limitations. For instance, one reached too far for a fly ball and fel from his chair.

"I'm going to have a safety belt installed," was his only comment as he continued playing.

Crippled W. M. Worried Over N. C. State Tilt

Williamsburg, Va., Oct. 24 (AP).—The William and Mary Indians face one of the hardest tasks of their current schedule when they tangle with the Wolfpack of North Carolina State at Foreman Field Friday night.

Dave Bucher, back, and co-captain, will not be able to play in the State game, and Guard Henry Shook, still suffering from serious knee injuries, will also be out of action. It is a question whether Ralph Hendrix, another guard, will be able to play as he has been slowed up by a neck injury? Other tribesmen who may not be in the game Friday are Bill Klein, out with a pulled muscle; Bob Sherry, left end, inactive pending the healing of a sprained ankle; and Bill Safko, end, who has a bruised knee. It is a toll of injuries such as this that has rendered the Indians less than full strength all season long.

The Indians backfield may see a few changes if Adoph Null, Dixie Walker and Bob Piefke's performances in the last half of the VMI game mean anything—and they should. Null, a wingback; Walker, a blocking back; and Piefke, fullback, all stand an even chance for breaking into the starting lineup.

Momo Flag Third; Victor Pays $29.90

By Walter Haight
Post Staff Writer

Pimlico, Md., Oct. 24.—Leading all the way, Hal Price Headley's Letmenow won the eighth running of the $10,000 Grayson Stakes today before a crowd of about 12,000 persons at Pimlico race track, defeating Greentree Stable's Willing Spirit by a length.

A. Lamoureux's Momo Flag was a head in front of Sandy Lane Farm's Dinner Party for the show place in a field of nine for this 1½-mile test for 3-year-olds and up.

The chilled crowd, watching the feature under gray skies, established Christiona Stable's Megogo as the favorite, but the 4-year-old son of Menow was never in contention and wound up seventh.

Letmenow with F. A. Smith in the saddle, completed the distance in 2:34 3/5 over a fast track and paid his backers $29.90, $13.10 and $8.30 for $2 across the board. His victory was worth $6975.

Floating Scores

T. T. Mott's Floating Isle, well handled by Howard Cruz, outgamed Mrs. R. H. Crawford's Kennebunk to account for the 2-mile steeplechase by a length and a half as the favored Caddie, from the Rokeby Stable, was third, another length away. Only five started and of these, Royal Archer unseated Fred Kratz at the fifth fence. After Royal Archer was eliminated, Floating Isle and Kennebunk had the race to themselves with Caddie making a belated bid in the final half-mile. Floating Isle was timed in 355 4/5 and the payoff was $6.30.

First disqualification on the flat of the meeting occurred in the mile and 70-yard fifth, for 2-year-old fillies. Crispin Oglebay's Upper Level headed W. McIntosh's G Girl at the end of the trip, but the stewards uphled a claim of foul by Ernest Wood on G Girl that Upper Level had bothered his mount in the stretch run. Upped Level, ridden by Johnny Gilbert was placed second. Three and a half-lengths back, Knollwood Stable's Proposition was third. Upper Level made all the pace, with G Girl moving up to challenge in the home lane, the interference, if any being very slight. G Girl paid $13 and the time was 1:46.

An Easy Winner

Quantico Stable's Indian Sun, ridden by Apprentice John Covalli proved much the best of a dozen cheap platers going a mile and a sixteenth in the day's first number. Timed in 1:48 4/5, Indian Sun galloped home six lengths before H. J. Watters' Orgullosa and the latter was five in front of Watson Elliott's Hazel W. Blockader, the favorite was a dull running forth. Indian Sun's backers collected $16.50.

Jockey Danny Scocca, riding S. Cicero's Flying Scout was unseated at the first turn and appeared to have suffered only bruises but was taken to Bon Secour Hospital to have X-rays taken of his ankle.

John's Star, owned by Mrs. L. M. Carver and handled by Apprentice Ernest Wood, raced close to the early pace of L. Brooks' Specialist D in the six furlong second and finally wore down that rival to score by half a length in 1:14 4/5.

The daily double combination of Indian Sun and John's Star was worth $74.10.

Jeffra, in Return Role, Faces Russo On Balto. Card

Baltimore, Oct. 24 (AP).—The comeback hopes of Harry Jeffra, former bantam and feather weight titleholder, are pinned on his 10-round match against Freddie Russo, Rahway, N. J., 126-pounder headliner of the Baltimore Coliseum ring show Monday.

Russo, with a record of 53 victories in 54 professional fights, captured decisions from Pittsburgh Jackie Wilson, former featherweight champion, and Leroy Jackson in previous coliseum bouts and will have Rocky Graziano, outstanding welter, in his corner Monday.

Jeffra, a Baltimorean, has not appeared before a home crowd since his defeat by Wilson last January.

The secondary eight-round feature on Monday's card will be fought by Jimmy Bell, Washington, and Al Blake, Baltimore, Negro heavyweights.

Johnny Ditlo and "Flattop" Cummings are slated for a six-round rematch.

Greenberg Feted By Baseball Men At N. Y. Luncheon

New York, Oct. 24 (INS).—Baseball men, led by Commissioner A. B. (Happy) Chandler, and notables from all walks of life today paid tribute to Hank Greenberg, Detroit Tigers star, at a Saints and Sinners luncheon.

"In Greenberg," Chandler said, "we have a true example of what it is to be a good American. He did his job in war, and he has done a tremendous job in peace."

Greenberg reiterated his late-season prophecy that his baseball days may be numbered.

"In the light of that," he added, "I feel doubly hinored that I could come back to my old home town and receive such an award as this from the eople with whom I grew up."

Dodger Boss Confident Negro Star Will Click

By Jack Hand

New York, Oct. 24 (AP).—Branch Rickey thinks Jackie Robinson, the first Negro to crash the portals of modern organized baseball, is an "outstanding prospect" who should make the big league grade in Brooklyn after a period of "orientation" on the Montreal farm.

"I've never seen the boy play," admitted the Dodgers' president. "But the reports from my scouts indicate he should be able to play for Brooklyn after the proper schooling. He isn't ready right now, and I don't think there is a Negro player anywhere who is ready.

"If I thought he was ripe for the majors, I would have signed him to a Dodger contract. Does that answer your question as to whether I was hedging on sending him to the minor leagues? He's no Babe Huth, but he's a good hitter. It's all up to him from now on."

Oldster Recalled

For 24 hours after signing with Montreal, Robinson was tagged as the first Negro ever to enter organized ball. However Fred Bendel, veteran baseball writer of the Newark News, and Secretary Bill Manley of the International League recalled a Negro star hurler at Newark.

Bendel said he was George Stovey who pitched for "the Little Giants" and earned 35 victories, still the high water mark for the circuit.

Asked what would happen if Robinson, former UCLA grid ace, failed to make the grade in double a ball, Rickey observed: "We will make such adjustments as meet the requirements of the club and player. He has told me he doesn't want to go any place he won't be welcome.

Trains in Florida

"Robinson will train with Montreal at Daytona Beach, Fla.," the executive said. "I hope he will not have to undergo undue pressure that might harm his future. As far as any trouble with his own teammate and hotel and travel problems I feel all have been overstressed. If any cliques should develop in the club, we will take steps."

"In talking to this young gentleman I considered only the Negro himself and the Brooklyn Baseball Club," stated Rickey. "No pressure groups had anything to do with it; in fact, I signed him in spite of such groups rather than because of them.

"We scouted the so-called Negro league last year quite thoroughly with special emphasis on Robinson. In fact, we have several other Negroes in mind who will be signed to minor league contracts before the next season starts. I cannot tell you who they are or how many, but I do expect other clubs to follow suit."

K. C. Ignored

Commenting on reports that the Kansas City Monarchs, with whom Robinson played last summer, were threatening to protest to Commissioner A. B. Chandler the signing of one of their stars, Rickey blasted, "There is no Negro league as such as far as I am concerned. Negro baseball is in the zone of a racket and there is not a circuit that could be admitted to organized ball, Clark Griffith of Washington to the contrary.

"Eventually I hope the Negroes will have their own league under the administrative setup that governs all baseball. I hope to own a club in such a league."

Chandler refused to comment on the signing of Robinson and said he would decide whether any protest from the owner of the Monarchs would be entertained when he received the protest.

The "day after" comemnt by baseball men and sports editors was largely favorable.

Representative Powell (D., N. Y.) hailed the signing as "a definite step toward winning the peace."

Griffith Says Dodgers Should Pay for Robinson

Clark Griffith yesterday took a critical look at the signing of Jackie Robinson, Negro baseball player, and exploded.

Asserted the 75-year-old owner of the Nats:

If the Brooklyn Dodgers want Robinson, star shortstop of the Kansas City Monarchs of the Negro American League, "they should pay for him;"

Major league clubs "can't act like outlaws" in taking players from Negro leagues;

And Baseball Commissioner A. B. (Happy) Chandler "should have something to say" about the signing Tuesday of Robinson by Montreal of the International League, a Brooklyn farm.

Barons to Meet Jefferson Eleven

Bethesda-Chevy Chase's Barons, victors in one out of three games this season, meet Thomas Jefferson High of Falls Church at Bethesda at 3:30 p. m. in today's only local grid contest.

In their only other appearance against a local eleven, the Jeffs bowed to Montgomery-Blair, 6-0. The Barons defeated National Training School, before losing two in a row, to Fairfax and St. Albans.

Fenimore May Again Win Offense Honors

Dallas, Oct. 24 (AP).—Bob Fenimore, Oklahoma A. and M.'s All-America back, is on the way toward the top spot in total offense in the Nation's college football for the second season in a row. And if he captures the laurels again, blond Bob will be the first player ever to turn the trick.

Statistical figures released today by Homer F. Cooke, jr., director of the National Collegiate Athletic Bureau, official service of the NCAA, show Fenimore through the first month of play to have rolled up 704 yards rushing and passing in three starts. Cooke's figures cover all games through October 13.

Herman Wedemeyer of St. Mary's (Calif.) has the most yardage—820—but has played in one more game than Fenimore. Allan Dekdebrun of Cornell, also in four games, is third, with 657 yards.

Last year Fenimore led the Nation with 1758 yards in 241 plays in eight games, a record average of 219.8 per game. He has averaged 234.7 in his first three starts this season.

Fenimore leads in rushing offense with 487 yards with George Clark of Duke second with 455 and Lynn Chewning of VMI third with 425, the latter two in one more game than Oklahoma A. and M.'s great back.

In passing Wedemeyer is tops with 635 yards on 32 completions out of 52 attempts, while Dekdebrun is second with 594 yards on 51 connections on 92 throws and Leon Joslin of Texas Christian is third with 364 yards on 25 completions in 43 attempts. The bes tpassing average, however, is held by Nick Sacrinity of Wake Forest with 26 completions in 42 throws for .619.

In pass receiving Dennis O'Conner of St. Mary's leads with 240 yards on 15 catches in four games with Glenn Treichler of Colgate second with 10 catches for 203 yards in three games.

Jack Weisenburger of Michigan tops the punters with an average of 43.1 in five games with Jack Breslin of Michigan State next with 42.8 and Wedemeyer third with 42.6.

Glenn Davis, Army's great back, who averaged 11.5 on 58 carries last year for a national all-time record, has clipped off a 12.1 average on his 31 runs in three games this year.

Plyaing tackle seems to run in the Barber family. Now it's Srnie Barber, heretofore a center, who will perform in the old familiar right tackle spot in the Redskins' line. Ernie was switched to Brother Jim's old territory in a recent shift calculated to give the Redskins more power both on offense and defense. Ernie also will inherit Brother Jim's old No. 15, changing jerseys with end Alex Piasecky just to make the shift official. Alex will take Ernie's No. 43. Brother Jim was all-league tackle several times during the Ray Flaherty regime and he, with Turk Edwards, now line coach of the Redskins, were just about two of the toughest tackles in the National Football League. Jim is now line coach at the Navy's Shoemaker (Calif.) Base where Lieut. Comdr. Bill (G. W. grid coach) Reinhart is now head coach and whose star performer is Steve Juzwik, another Redskin via Notre Dame . . . Promoter Joe Turner's boxing business is definitely on the upswing. Boxing Commission either has, or shortly will, call in its official physicians for a hush-hush session in an effort to "standardize" physical requirements for the passing or rejecting fighters? All of which is said to be induced by the recent passing of one Jack Larrimore of Miami who could hardly stand on a bad knee and fell easy prey to Aaron Perry at Uline Arena last month . . . Cranford Faces McNutt on Next Turner Card

Jackie Cranford, local heavyweight who recently was discharged from the United States Coast Guard after more than three years of an unbeaten record in flistic competition, will oppose Carrington McNutt, Baltimore colored scrapper, in one of three eight-rounders on next Monday night's boxing show at Turner's Arena.

It will be Cranford's first match locally since he joined the Coast Guard shortly after ePari Harbor. A product of local amateur ranks, Cranford fought as a middleweight before he entered service.

McNutt is well known around Baltimore. He defeated Nick Manfredo and Mose Thomas.

Two other eight-rounders find Oscar (Atomic) Wright, Washington lightweight, seeking his thirty-eighth victory in 42 pro bouts against Charlie Millen, twice conqueror of Norval Gaddis, and Herbie (Biff) Jones, Southeast's "Fighting Schoolboy" battling Babe Kelly, of Philadelphia, who split with Jones in two Norfolk, Va., matches.

The show marks the pro debut here of Jones, who only recently reached his eighteenth birthday, though he has won 10 out of 11 pro matches elsewhere.

Bauer Barred In Horse Dope Case at Laurel

Baltimore, Oct. 24 (AP).—The Maryland Racing Commission revoked today the license of Trainer J. J. Bauer, of Jamaica, N. Y., and ruled him off Maryland tracks indefinitely following a hearing on charges of administering stimulants to a horse.

At the same time, the commission barred Norwalk Stables, which employed Bauer, from racing in Maryland until the "ownership of the stable's horses could be established."

The Norwalk string and Bauer were suspended last week after the commission received a report from chemists that benzedrine had been found in a urine sample from Armistice Day, 5-year-old gelding that won the fourth race at Laurel Park October 16.

Bauer Denies Charge

During the hearing Bauer said he had not administered stimulants to Armistice Day, but said the horse was unguarded during night hours at the Bowie, Md., stalls. Groom Jefferson Adams of Jamaica also told the commission neither Bauer nor he had drugged the animal.

The owenrship question arose when Mahoney quetsioned Edward Segal of New York City, who said he had bought the string from his brother, Samuel, but had not paid him in full.

Dissatisfied with that statement, Mahoney declared he was "suspicious" about the situation and announced the decision to suspend the stable until a "very thorough investigation" and a further hearing was held by the commission.

At that future hearing, Mahoney told Segal, he expected the sportsman to produce books, facts and figures, to show "that the horses are really owned by you."

Mahoney produced a letter from the New York Jockey Club indicating that a third brother, Harry, was barred from New York tracks, which Edward Segal said was in contradiction to what Jockey Club officials told him.

Bauer was recalled to the witness stand by Mahoney, who asked him just what part his brother Harry played in the affairs of the stable. Bauer replied that Harry Segal was interested in the string and kept abreast of its activities—which Edward Segal admitted he did not always do himself.

Lion Icemen Come Here for Drills Monday

The Washington Eastern Jockey League Lions will break camp at Midland, Ont., over the weekend and will report here Sunday, it was announced last night by Howard Livingston, Uline Arena manager.

The local skaters have scheduled their firs tworkout on Uline Ice for Monday at 2 p. m. and will continue with practices daily while pointing for their league inaugural against Philadelphia's Falcons here Friday night, November 2.

From the Lions' Midland base, Coach Maxie Bennett announces tha tfour defensemen have been signed for 1945-46, namely: Harold Hurlsey, Joe Fennell, Vernon Kaiser and Dan Linton.

Livingston last night disclosed that Capt. Andrew Kubu, former commissioner of recreation in Cleveland and a physical instructor of the American armed forces in World War I, has been appointed director of promotion at Uline Arena for the year ahead. He not only is to assist in building up the Lions, but also is setting up an interesting program for local scholastic and amateur ice hockey teams.

Special books of tickets carrying a reduced price are available now at Uline Arena for the first 15 home hockey matches of the Lions.

Mrs. Graham's Colony Boy Wins Feature

Jamaica Race Track, N. Y., Oct. 24 (AP).—Mrs. Elizabeth Graham's Colony Boy, highest priced yearling of the 1944 sales at $46,000, captured the Danbury Purse today and gave more promise than in any of his five previous races that he might yet justify his purchase figure.

Taking all the worst of the racing luck, the bay son of Eight Thirty-Heritage romped over 6 furlongs of a sloppy track in 1:12 1/5 and took down the $3250 first money with 5 lengths to spare. Darby D'Amour, an entry with Darby D-Day owned by John W. Galbreath, headed W. S. Jacobs' Ruling Time for the place.

It was Colony Boy's third triumph in six starts and made his earnings total $7060. The improving colt returned $6.60 for two, closing a close second choice to Jule Fink's Ringoes, which ran fourth in a field of a dozen juveniles.

This was Mrs. Graham's forty-eighth victory of the year. The cosmetics lady, who is in a duel with Louis B. Mayer for leading money-winning stable of 1945, now has a total of $490,055.

Ringoes was ridden by Mike Caffarella, who was performing today for the first time since he was suspended August 30, during the Saratoga-at-Belmont meeting, charged with "unsatisfactory riding" by the Saratoga stewards. Mike was eligible to return to competition last Monday, but waited until his afternoon to get back into action.

Darby D'Amour and Grandpa Max staged an exciting due for the early lead while Arnold Kirkland was waiting to strike with Colony Boy in third place. When they made the home turn, Darby D'Amour made a wide turn and the challenging Colony Boy was forced even farther to the outside.

Snyder Signs Again As Barons' Pilot

Birmingham, Ala., Oct. 24 (AP).—Frank Snyder, manager of the Birmingham Barons this year, has signed a new two-year contract at the managerial post, general manager Paul Florence announced today.

Snyder took the contract with him when he left Birmingham at the close of the Southern Association season in September, but had not announced previously whether he would return.

The Baron manager held similar posts at Houston and Forth Worth in the Texas League, St. Paul in the American Association, and Jersey City in the International, and was a coach for the New York Giants.

He was a catcher for the Giants in his playing days.

Coolidge Stadium Plans Tangled in Government Tape

Coolidge High football and baseball teams may have to wait at least until early 1948 before they will be able to play their interhigh contests on their own home grounds.

Plans for the construction of a Coolidge Stadium to be located at 3d and Sheridan sts. nw., after almost a year of passing through the proper Board of Education, District Commissioners and congressional channels are still in their pre-blueprint stages.

Early this year, the Board of Education, in the Budget Bureau's District appropriations report to Congress, requested funds for the drawing of blueprints for the construction of the proposed stadium. A sum of $4200 was granted.

But now the actual time of the drawing by the Department of Municipal Architect of the District is subject to a priority list of other Board of Education construction plans. This list will be presented by the board's Building, Grounds and Equipment Committee at the next meeting of the board, November 7.

'Flight' Wins Salem Race

Salem, N. H., Oct. 24 (AP).—Evening Flight, owned by Mrs. Thomas Haskos and Arthur Spilios, came nicely in the stretch over a sloppy track today and won the $2500 Eddie Hurley Memorial race by a neck over Oak Hill Stable's Gay Gino.

The 3-year-old brown filly from Firethorn—Kabo ran the mile and one-sixteenth in 1:50 and paid $13.80, $7.00 and $4.20.

Desert Stable's Milk Route, winner of the first, combined with Athur Hullcoat's Tim B, to yield a daily double payoff of $54.60.

TERRY

COLONEL CORKIN IS LAUGHING AT ME! HE KNOWS ABOUT MY TRYING TO BUILD A CAREER, BY WINNING AN ENGAGEMENT TO HIM FOR PRESTIGE...
...YOU SHOULDN'T HAVE DONE IT, APRIL! YOU'RE OUT OF YOUR LEAGUE!
I WANTED TO BE INDEPENDENT—I WAS IRKED BECAUSE COL. CORKIN DIDN'T LIKE MY BEING HERE...
ANOTHER RADIO MESSAGE FOR YOU, MISS KANE!
OH—IT'S FROM THE COMPANY WHICH HELD THE LEASE ON THIS ISLAND BEFORE THE JAPS TOOK OVER! THIS ONE MUST BE LEGITIMATE...
"...HAVE RECEIVED COMMUNICATION FROM COMMANDING OFFICER OF YOUR ISLAND STATING THAT RUMOR OF YOUR ENGAGEMENT TO COL. CORKIN WAS UNFOUNDED, BUT COMMENDING YOU IN HIGHEST TERMS FOR POSITION AS OUR U.S. AGENT THERE. THIS WILL SERVE AS OPTION ON YOUR SERVICES AT IDEAL COMMISSION RATES PENDING DRAWING OF CONTRACT..."

JOE PALOOKA

PARDON ME... YOU'RE JOE PALOOKA, AREN'T YOU?
YES'M
WHAT A COINCIDENCE, I'M ELAINE BICKER. TELL ME HOW IS ANN?
HOW D'YOU DO, MISS BICKER. ANN ISN'T BACK YET.
I WAS WITH HER AT GUADALCANAL SHE'S THE FINEST GIRL I'VE EVER KNOWN. AS BEAUTIFUL AS AN ORCHID, AND SO GENTLE AND KIND. YOU'RE A LUCKY MAN, MR. PALOOKA
YES THAN KNOW I DON'T DESERVE HER

MARY WORTH

FLAME! MY BABY! HOW COULD YOU DO THIS TO ME?
NOW, AMELIA! GARRY IS A FINE YOUNG MAN! HE'S GOING TO WORK HERE, IN MY PLANT...!
AFTER ALL, MOTHER!..YOU KNEW I'D MARRY SOME DAY!
MARRY--YES! BUT WHEN?--WHERE? WHO PERFORMED THE CEREMONY? WHO WERE YOUR ATTENDANTS?
IT WAS ABOUT MIDNIGHT--AROUND A MONTH AGO! I DON'T RECALL THE NAME OF THE PLACE, THE PREACHER OR THE WITNESSES!
OOH! DRIVE ME HOME QUICKLY, HARVEY! I MUST HAVE A SEDATIVE--!
NOT YOU, YOUNG MAN! GO TO A HOTEL, PLEASE--WE MUST DISCUSS THIS--THIS CRISIS --WITHOUT STRANGERS AROUND!
SLAM!

MYRTLE

MICKEY FINN

ONE OF BINGO'S FLEAS HOPPED RIGHT UP ON THE TABLE!
I'LL GET MY MAGNIFYING GLASS!
LOOKIE, MYRTLE! HE'S SCRATCHING JUST LIKE BINGO DOES!
DO FLEAS HAVE FLEAS?
I GUESS EVERYTHING HAS SOMETHING TO WORRY ABOUT.
I'LL TELL BINGO!
I THOUGHT YOU'D GET A KICK OUT OF SEEING THAT!

DIXIE DUGAN

IT'S THE BROTHER'S STUDIO, ALL RIGHT, MICHAEL--HERE'S THAT MASK HE MADE OF ME!
AND LOOK AT THESE OTHER PAINTINGS, UNCLE PHIL --THEY ALL HAVE CRAZY BODIES ON 'EM, TOO!
HE MUST'VE BEEN A GREAT ARTIST ONCE, MICHAEL! I'LL BET THAT'S WHAT THE BUTLER WAS GOING TO TELL YOU THAT DAY--WHEN HE SAW MISS TITE STANDIN' BEHIND YOU!
YEAH--BUT I WONDER WHY SHE DIDN'T WANT HIM TO TELL ME?
LET'S GO UP AND ASK HIM RIGHT NOW!
OH, NOT TONIGHT, UNCLE PHIL! WE DON'T WANT TO WAKE HIM UP!
I'M AWAKE, SIR!
I HEARD YOU COME DOWNSTAIRS --AND I THOUGHT THERE WAS TROUBLE!

MOTHER WANTS YOU TO O.K. THESE DESIGNS --WHERE'S MICKEY?
I DON'T KNOW--
--AND I DON'T CARE --AS FAR AS I'M CONCERNED SHE'S THRU WITH THIS ORGANIZATION
OH, JUDD! WHAT HAPPENED??
DIXIE--I'VE TRIED TO UNDERSTAND HER BURNING AMBITION TO GET AHEAD--I CAN EVEN UNDERSTAND HER GOING OUT TO LUNCH WITH "RACY JACK" THE GAMBLING CZAR--
OH-NO-
--BUT TAKING THREE HOURS FOR LUNCH IS BEYOND MY ABILITY TO UNDERSTAND THIS BRINGS THINGS TO A HEAD--MICKEY MUST BE IN A JAM AND I'VE GOT TO FIND OUT WHAT IT IS

CHIEF WAHOO and STEVE ROPER

WINNIE WINKLE

SO, YOUNG FELLA! THIS PAIR IS BLACKMAILERS, HUH? AN' THEY TRIED TO BUMP YE OFF? I RECKON THERE'LL BE A NICE REWARD ON THESE TWO!
HADN'T YOU BETTER PHONE FOR POLICE TO COME AND GET THEM HARDHAT?
AN' SPLIT TH' REWARD? --NO SIR! YOU KEEP TH' GUN ON TH' GAL! I CAN HANDLE THIS MUG!
HERE'S TH' LOBBY! COME ALONG, TOUGH GUY!
AS HARDHAT, THE HOTEL DECTECTIVE, STEPS OUT, DEADHEAD PULLS BACK AND GRABS THE ELEVATOR DOOR HANDLE!

THIS PACKAGE FROM PRISSY TO MIMI WITH LOVE"!! IT'S YOUR BIG CHANCE TO CALL OFF THE WEDDING!
SURE, WINNIE! FORGET YOU'RE A LADY! ACT REAL INDIGNANT! GIVE HIM HAIL COLUMBIA!!
MISS WINKLE, I-ER-
MISTER PRISSY, I'LL THANK YOU NOT TO SPEAK TO ME! I'VE DISCOVERED WHAT A GAY OLD DECEIVER YOU ARE----
THERE IS YOUR PRETTY PACKAGE FOR MIMI! SAVE YOUR LOVE FOR HER! AS FOR ME - I'M THROUGH!
AT'S TELLIN' HIM, WINNIE!

KING OF THE ROYAL MOUNTED

MEBBE SHE'S RIGHT, MEN! WE'LL SEE IF THET'S KING SHOOTIN' CORONER WEBB... TAKE TH' NOOSE OFFA BILLY!
YOU BET! I DIDN'T LIKE THIS LYNCHING NONE TOO WELL, ANYWAY!
...MEANWHILE, IN THE WOODS...
YOU'VE ADDED ANOTHER COUNT, CORONER... MURDERING YOUR KILLER PAL!
IF I CAN JUST GET TO ONE OF THOSE HOSSES... I'LL STAMPEDE TH' REST AND KING'LL NEVER GET ME!

DONALD DUCK

CRANBERRY BOGGS

DOTTY

-GULP- I HOPE SHE BE HOME-- AHOY, KANDY!
KNOCK KNOCK
10 MINUTES LATER
NOBUDDY WAS AT KANDY'S HOME AN' NOBUDDY BE HERE AT WOODCHUCK'S PLACE EITHER ---???
GOLLY-M-MOSES-- EVERYBUDDY IN COD CLIFFS SEEMS TA HAVE DISAPPEARED! I'M GOIN' HOME AN' ASK GRANNY WOT THIS BE ALL ABOUT!
Ring Ding!
ARRIVING HOME, CRANBERRY ACCIDENTLY GLANCES INTO HIS BACK WINDOW--- S-S-SUFFERIN' SARDINES--- WOT HAVE I DID!

HORACE, BE SURE TO WASH OFF THE CLOTHES LINE BEFORE YOU HANG THOSE THINGS OUT TO DRY!
HM-M--I'D BETTER WASH THE LINE FIRST!
HORACE, WHY DIDN'T YOU WASH THESE TOWELS LIKE YOU PROMISED?!
WHY DOTTY, YOU WOULDN'T HANG THEM ON A WET CLOTHES LINE WOULD YOU?!!
BUSHRD TUKE

PENNY

WHERE ARE YOU GOING, DEAR?
DOWN TO THE GAS STATION, MOTHER.
REALLY, PENNY, DO YOU THINK A GAS STATION IS A PROPER PLACE TO SPEND SO MUCH TIME? DO YOU REALLY LIKE IT?
BUT OF COURSE NOT, MOTHER!
THEN WHY GO THERE?
DON'T YOU ACTUALLY KNOW MOTHER THAT VERONICA BACALL WAS DISCOVERED BY A MOVIE TALENT SCOUT AT A LITTLE OLD GAS STATION!
DO YOU MIND SHIFTING THE CARCASS, GARBO, WE'RE A LITTLE RUSHED TODAY!
GAS

--JUST ARRIVED IN THE NICK OF TIME. SUPERMAN AND LOIS ARE NOW STANDING TOGETHER, HAND IN HAND...
WHEW! FOR A MOMENT, I THOUGHT HE WAS GOING TO JILT HER!
...AND NOW JUDGE DALRYMPLE HAS BEGUN THE READING OF THE MARRIAGE CEREMONY...
THE MOMENT THE KNOT IS TIED, WE START!
DO YOU, LOIS LANE TAKE THIS MAN, SUPERMAN, TO BE YOUR LAWFULLY WEDDED HUSBAND, TO LOVE, HONOR AND OBEY, IN SICKNESS AND IN HEALTH, FOR RICHER OR POORER, FOR BETTER OR WORSE, TILL DEATH DO YOU PART?
I DO!!

NAPOLEON

NAPOLEON HAS BEEN INCONSOLABLE EVER SINCE THEY BURNED HIS OLD HOUSE TO MAKE ROOM FOR THAT NEW POST-WAR DOG EDIFICE. HE'S SITTING IN THE MIDDLE OF THE ONLY PART OF THE HOUSE THAT'S COMPLETED -- THE SPACE FOR OUTDOOR LIVING.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Wife, 27, Refuses to Follow Husband Back To His Family When War Job Ends; For 10 Years, Mother-in-Law Had Foot on Her Neck

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a housewife, 27. My husband is 34. We have a daughter nearly 9. We come from a small town where my husband lived all his life, prior to coming here some months ago to take a defense job.

Since the war ended he is without a job, and rather than look for another job here, which he no doubt could find—and with better possibilities than he can hope to find in our small town,—he boarded a train the other day for his home town and said he would call me when he found a job and a place for us to live.

When he left, I told him I would refuse to go back there unless he found a good job and provided a home of our own—not with his mother, to whose apron strings he seems to be tied. It seems he can't live without her, although she has no use for myself and daughter, and made things most unpleasant for us during all the years we lived with her before.

He Demands Her Return

INSTEAD of calling me as he promised, he sent me a curt telegram, almost a command, within a few hours of his arrival. I knew he couldn't have found a job and a house in that short time and I feel that he is determined, simply, to settle there with his mother. After giving the matter much thought and getting over my first anger, I called him long distance to say I had received his wire.

He said he wanted me there by Saturday. I told him I couldn't make it by Saturday, Sunday or Monday. He then asked gruffly when I could make it, whereupon I told him I wasn't going back there to live with his mother; that it was about time for him to stand on his own feet. I also told him that, if necessary, I would get a job, too, (I have been offered one), so we could stay here. There is a neighbor who would care for our little girl if I work.

They Have Funds For Fresh Start

AT THIS point I was sobbing, heartbroken, and the operator said our time was up. My husband said he would write to me. In the 10 years of our marriage, I have always let him have his way and he has always considered his mother first. But I have borne all that I intend to from her and see no reason for our returning there,—which probably would be for the balance of our lives. We are not hard pressed; we have some money saved. I think we could make a fresh start in life right here.

I have no intention of returning to the home of his folks. I believe it is time for me to take a firm stand. If my husband cares for me, as I believe he does, I think he will come to his senses and return to me. What is your advice? K. S.

Stand Like Rock In Self Defense

DEAR K. S.: If it pleases your mother-in-law to foster weakness of character in her son, to welcome him back to dependent servile status, all the more reason for you to stand like a rock where you are in this crisis—primarily in self-defense, to maintain the toehold on freedom you waited 10 years to establish; and secondly, to keep your child at a safe distance from the negative home influences that have been her father's undoing.

For practical suggestions: Go into action at once to line up a decently paid job and responsible day-care for your child, so that you can stay here indefinitely on a self-supporting basis, if he fails to produce, back home, that roof of your own you rightfully demand.

Self Reliance Rx for Crisis

THE crisis will have passed, for you when you have proved to your own satisfaction that you can stand on your own feet if necessary. Then you can take him or leave him—on your own terms. But your terms will never prevail until he notes that you are stronger than he; because, weakling that he is, he must have a dictator power to lean on.

His mother's advantage over you in this tug of war lies in the fact that she is a rooted power in her own right, whereas you—in following his lead — had permitted yourself to become as much of a leaner as he. M. H.

Father Gives Miss Parsons In Marriage

In the Francis Asbury Methodist Church yesterday at 9:15 p. m. Miss Lorma B. Parsons became the bride of Daryl D. Bebernes. The Rev. O. B. Langrall officiated.

The bride is daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lester E. Parsons, Shade Gap, Pa., and Mr. Bebernes is son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bebernes, Dunnell, Minn.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in traditional white satin, designed with sweetheart neckline and circular train. She carried a prayerbook with a shower bouquet of gardenias and sweetpeas. Miss Mae Ethesedge, maid of honor, was costumed in turquoise blue taffeta and carried pink roses. Corpl. Clyder Miller served as best man and ushering were Denver Brewer and Thomas Fox.

David B. Kitts, California Girl Are Married

An heirloom rose point lace veil, fastened with orange blossoms, a white chiffon velvet gown with fitted bodice, long tight sleeves and full skirt with train was the costume of Miss Nancy Crisp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Crisp, Los Gatos, Calif., when she became the bride of David Burlingame Kitts, son of Rear Admiral and Mrs. Willard A. Kitts, Washington. The Rev. Charles Warner officiated last Monday in St. Alban's Church.

The bride's wedding bouquet was of white carnations and tulle Rear Admiral George F. Hussey, jr., gave Miss Crisp in marriage. Miss Suzanne Burlingame Kitts, sister of the bridegroom, attended as maid of honor attired in American beauty faille with a headdress and bouquet of white carnations and ribbons.

Lieut. Willard Kitts, USNR, served the bridegroom as best man. Ushers were Lieut. Edmund Johnson Burrough, USNR, Lieut. (j. g.) Richard Marcus, USNR, Seaman 1/c Herman J. Redfield, USNR, and Apprentice Seaman Harold Turner Mankin, USNR.

Mrs. Kitts is the granddaughter of Mrs. Tyler Henshaw, Oakland, Calif.

After a week's honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. Kitts will be at home in Philadelphia, Pa., where they both will attend the University of Pennsylvania.

Cabinet Wives Honor Guests At Luncheon

There was so much rank present at the American Newspaper Women's Club luncheon yesterday honoring Mrs. James F. Byrnes, wife of the Secretary of State, that protocol was parked at the entrance of the Chinese ball room at the Mayflower Hotel, where the event was held.

To solve the seating problem, members and their guests, with exception of Cabinet wives and club officers, drew numbers. Those at the head table included Mrs. Byrnes, Mrs. Fred M. Vinson, wife of the Secretary of the Treasury; Mrs. Robert P. Patterson, wife of the Secretary of War; Mrs. Tom Clark, wife of the Attorney General; Mrs. Robert E. Hannegan, wife of the Postmaster General; Mrs. Harold L. Ickes, wife of the Secretary of the Interior; Mrs. Clinton P. Anderson, wife of the Secretary of Agriculture; Mrs. Henry A. Wallace, wife of the Secretary of Commerce, and Mrs. Cordell Hull, wife of the former Secretary of State, who has long been an associate member of the club.

Mrs. Forrestal Absent

Mrs. James V. Forrestal, wife of the Secretary of the Navy, an associate member of the club, was out of town and could not attend.

Among the guests were Mme. Bianchi, wife of the Portuguese Ambassador; Mrs. Lester B. Pearson, wife of the Canadian Ambassador; Mrs. Harold Burton, wife of the new Supreme Court Justice; Mrs. Joseph L. Farrington, wife of the Delegate from Honolulu; Mrs. O. Max Gardner, Mrs. Horace Van Devanter, Mrs. Claude Pepper, Miss Ellen Woodward, Mrs. Wade Ellis, Mrs. Walter S. George.

Associate Members There

Also Mrs. Valentine Pottle, Mrs. Tom Connally, wife of Senator Connally; Mrs. Rudolph Max Kauffmann, Mrs. Eugene Ormandy, Mrs. Dorothy Dorsey, Mrs. Robert Merritt, Mrs. Junior Owen, Mrs. Theodore Pierson, Mrs. Leslie Biffle, Mrs. Dreyfus Barney, Mrs. Peter Collins, Miss Petrica Casey, Mrs. Irving Ketchum, Mrs. George Calver, Miss Anne Stimson of New York City.

Associate members who came with guests included Mme. Wei, wife of the Chinese Ambassador; Mrs. Edward Everett (Dolly) Gann, and Mrs. Robert Freer.

Major Oakes Takes Bride, Miss Hartman

Miss Margery Caroline Hartman, daughter of Mrs. Emanuel H. Hartman, Hartford, and of the late Mr. Hartman, was married yesterday to Maj. John Bertam Oakes, New York, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. George W. Ochs Oakes.

The noon ceremony at the Hotel Plaza was performed by Rabbi Abraham J. Feldman of the Temple Beth Israel, Hartford. The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Lieut. Joseph A. Hartman, USNR, who recently returned from overseas service. She wore a white faille gown and a tulle vail attached to a cap of lace which had been worn by her maternal grandmother at her wedding. Her bouquet was of stephanotis and calladlum leaves.

Mrs. George W. Oakes, Washington, and Mrs. Alter Sharp, Nashville, Tenn., were bridesmaids. Capt. George W. Oakes was best man for his brother and ushering were Julius Ochs Adler, Capt. W. Bitmer Browne, Capt. Harry K. Lannon and Perry K. Sellon.

The bride was graduated from Bryn Mawr College. Until recently she was a member of the news division of the overseas branch of the Office of War Information.

Major Oakes, who was on the staff of The Washington Post before entering the Army in 1941, has just completed 22 months' service in the European theater. He is a graduate of Princeton University and of Oxford, where he was a Rhodes Scholar at The Queen's College.

NEEDLEWORK LOVERS

For the reader desiring the address of a needlecraft magazine, Mrs. L. K. L., Minnesota, writes: "I'm sure the needlework lover would like Aunt Ellen's WORKBASKET. This monthly pattern and direction service brings the latest creations in handcraft and needlework from the country's foremost artists and designers. It is $1.00 a year for twelve issues, but no samples are sent because each issue contains large hot iron transfer patterns as well as ideas for such items as doilies, edgings, bedspreads, tablecloths, hats, bags, and baby's things. Orders should be sent to the WORKBASKET, 1752 Westport Station, Kansas City 2, Mo." If you are not delightfully pleased with the first issue, Aunt Ellen will return your dollar and you may keep the material you have received without any obligation.—Adv.

Town Talk

—By Elizabeth Churchill—

THERE was a time when French was considered the "court" language at world capitals. It still comes in handy, but Espanol has been gaining such momentum in Washington that it's been coming through the windows and coming through the floor, coming down the chimney and now it's coming through the White House door.

MRS. TRUMAN

Mrs. Truman is now hostess to a Spanish class meeting at the White House on Monday mornings from 11 until 12:30. The First Lady takes her place with the other students before the blackboard in the Green Room and is not immune to being called down by Prof. Ramon Ramos with a sputter, "No habla en Ingles!" when the temptation to drop into English becomes too strong.

The other students who carry the school books to the White House are Mrs. James F. Byrnes, wife of the Secretary of State; Mrs. Robert Patterson, wife of the Secretary of War; Mrs. Tom C. Clark, wife of the Attorney General; Mrs. Lester B. Pearson, wife of the Ambassador from Canada, Mrs. Lister Hill, wife of the Senator from Alabama; Mrs. Dwight Eisenhower (need I say?); Mrs. Dean Acheson, wife of the Undersecretary of State; Miss Jessie Sumner, Congresswoman from Illinois; Mrs. Harold Burton, wife of the new Supreme Court Associate Justice, and Miss Florence King, daughter of the Commander of the United States Fleet, Admiral Ernest J. King.

ALL of this popularity of Spanish in Washington didn't just happen. It's been the "baby" of Mrs. Clarence Norton Goodwin for the last three years along with all her other activities with Latin-American good neighbor policy. Why Gussy Goodwin hasn't been given a post in the State Department by this time the State Department only knows.

Anyway, the first Spanish class started three years ago in the Goodwin apartment at the Shoreham Hotel and now there are four classes meeting there twice a week.

Last year Mrs. Truman entered the beginners' class and was doing mighty well until her husband became President and made her attendance a difficulty.

So it was red-haired Mrs. Goodwin who got the bright idea of having the classes at the White House and saving a lot of trouble for the First Lady. And leave it to Gussy to be the first non White House lady to write cards of admittance to the Executive Mansion. For each member she wrote little cards of identification and, true to her habit, she's drawn little Spanish pictures on them, just as she does on every communication she writes.

It will be a familiar sight each Monday now to see Mrs. Goodwin driving through the West Gate, Professor Ramos beside her, and a large blackboard balanced precariously in the back, while a string of policemen whistle violently for reasons unknown to Gussy.

Boyd Triplets on Way to Success on Broadway

By Marie McNair

The Boyd triplets — dancing daughters of the former Ambassador of Panama, Jorge Boyd, are winning their way to success.

They went from Washington to Hollywood and then on to New York. At their debut to night club audiences in the Persian Room at the Plaza, their aunt, Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, was there to give them a hand.

Edith, Elena and Mildred Boyd are now to have parts in "The Duchess Misbehaves," a new Broadway show. In it they'll sing and dance and no doubt strum their guitars, just as they did in Washington to entertain their friends.

The Boyd sisters have probably the most distinguished family background of anyone who has ever come to Broadway. Granddaughters of Frederico Boyd, founder and first President of the Republic of Panama, they are daughters of a former Panama Ambassador, and nieces of a former President of Panama who was also Vice President at the time he served as Ambassador to the United States.

Their mother, the former Elizabeth Bolling, is a niece of Mrs. Woodrow Wilson and, through the Bollings, is a descendant of Pocohantas.

Wanted: A legation by the Government of Lebanon; a house by Capt. Donald Tallman, USN, and Mrs. Tallman, an apartment by Mrs. Gilbert Hitchcock.

It's the same old story, with the same answer every time.

This afternoon will be the last time that the Minister of Lebanon and Mrs. Malik will entertain at the house on Woodland dr., which has been the legation for six months. Mrs. Frederick Mitchell Gould, who spent the summer at her Newport home, is coming back November 1 to take her house, and at this moment the Minister and his wife are looking to a residence on the curbstone with no great relish.

After basking in California's sunshine at Coronado, Mrs. Tallman—she was Frances Virginia Waggaman, remember?—is back in Washington to live and hopes to get settled before Captain Tallman arrives. Now visiting Captain Tallman's mother at the Kennedy-Warren, Frankie Tallman has already put her young daughter, Robin Brownlee, in the Warrenton Country Day School, and later will be with her parents, Maj. and Mrs. Ennalls Waggaman, at the Westchester.

* * *

I saw Mrs. Gilbert Hitchcock at the Army and Navy Club the other day, just back from Cape Cod where she spent the summer. "I'm at the Shoreham," she said, "and looking." But now she has whisked off to her home in Omaha hoping for brighter prospects when she returns. Mrs. Hitchcock sold her house on Kalorama rd. last summer and it's now occupied by the Portuguese Ambassador and Mme. de Bianchi.

On the Date Book:

Lieut. and Mrs. Luther Matthew Bolton's cocktail party after 6 tomorrow at their home on East Bradley lane and Ralph Totten's party Saturday afternoon, November 3.

Miss Callender To Be Married

Brig. Gen. and Mrs. George R. Callender announce the engagement of their daughter, Catherine, to Lieut. j. g.) Raymond L. Gellein, USNR, son of Mr. and Mrs. Iver Gellein, San Diego, Calif.

Miss Callender attended Duke University and graduated from Dennison University where she was a member of Delta Gamma Sorority.

Lieutenant Gellein is a graduate of San Diego State College, where he was a member of the Tau Delta Chi and Blue Key Fraternities. He has recently returned from the European theater and is now stationed in Washington.

The wedding is planned for December.

To Have Opera Guests

Judge and Mrs. George D. Neilson will have several guests in their box at the opening of the Washington Grand Opera season tomorrow night at Constitution Hall. Included will be Justice Frank Murphy, the Ambassador of Ecuador and Senora de Plaza and Mme Wei.

Angel Cake Takes Top Honors In Birthday Baking Competition

Are Cabinet members cake eaters? Yes, if the cake is angel, chocolate, pound or spice.

Five Cabinet members' wives who were judges Monday at the thirteenth birthday celebration of WTOP, Columbia Broadcasting System, told me of their husbands' cake preferences. Mrs. Anderson looking over the vast array of cakes—257 in all—exclaimed, "I shudder to think how far my husband would go in eating these delicious cakes if he were turned loose in this room." What kind of cake does Secretary Anderson like best? "He likes all kinds of cakes," says his wife, "but I think he likes angel and sponge ones best."

Mrs. Patterson, wife of the Secretary of War, said that her husband loves angel cake. Mrs. Hannegan revealed that her Bob, Postmaster General, likes a fragrant spice cake.

It's a chocolate cake with fudge icing that pleases Attorney General Clark, according to his wife. Mrs. Byrnes, wife of the Secretary of State, says that her illustrious husband thinks that pound cake is "tops."

Despite sugar shortages and high ration points on fats, many persons, including homemakers, businesswomen, soldiers and sailors, found a way to enter the contest. The cakes were complete with icing, as the judges experienced when they were practically knee deep in frosting.

Top Honors to Angel Cake

It was an angel cake—the queen of cakedom—that walked off with top honors. This blue ribbon one had risen to royal heights—delicate and light, moist and tender. Even if this cake had not been exquisite of decor with pink icing roses and tiny pink streamers, it would still have had the approval of the judges.

Questions were flying everywhere—such as "Do you suppose that these angel cakes were made by using corn sirup, honey or brown sugar?" Since the creators were not at hand to ask, no one knew the answers. But, in my experience with angel cake baking, I've found that it is inadvisable to employ alternate sweetenings. In using sirup or honey in place of sugar the liquid called for in the recipe must be decreased. Since the only liquid used in angel food cake is the egg white, which cannot be safely reduced, it is best to use sugar.

Angel cakes are easier to make than some persons think. They are light with the air that is beaten into them. That's why air is sifted in with the flour, beaten in with the eggs, and kept in by the careful folding together of ingredients. This is the recipe by which Mrs. Horace H. Lurton, jr., 2129 Florida ave. nw., made her blue ribbon cake. When asked if it were a special recipe she said, "It's the same recipe that is found on the cake flour box."

ANGEL FOOD CAKE

Sift cake flour, measure to 1 cupful. Add ¼ cup sifted granulated sugar, and sift together with flour four times. Beat 1 cup egg whites with ¼ teaspoon salt with rotary beater or flat wire whisk. When foamy, add 1 teaspoon cream of tartar and continue beating until eggs are stiff enough to hold up in peaks, but not dry. Add 1 cup sugar that has been sifted, 2 tablespoons at a time, beating with rotary egg beater or whisk after each addition until sugar is JUST blended. Fold in ¾ teaspoon vanilla and ¼ teaspoon almond extract. Then sift about ¼ cup flour over mixture and fold in lightly; repeat until all is used. Turn into ungreased angel food pan. Cut gently through the batter with knife to remove air bubbles. Bake in slow oven, 325 degrees, for 45 to 50 minutes. Remove from oven and invert pan for 1 hour, or until cold.

Egg Temperature Important

Eggs should be removed from refrigerator several hours before using. They beat up lighter and more easily when at room temperature and give increased fineness of grain and delicacy of texture.

The cake may be iced or it is often served plain or sprinkled lightly with confectioners' sugar. A seven-minute frosting is a favorite of many. This is the recipe:

Seven-Minute Frosting — Combine 2 unbeaten egg whites with 1½ cups granulated sugar, 5 tablespoons water and 1½ tablespoons light corn syrup in top of double boiler, beating with rotary egg-beater until thoroughly mixed. Place over rapidly boiling water, beat constantly with rotary egg-beater and cook 7 minutes, or until frosting stands up in peaks. Remove from boiling water, add 1 teaspoon vanilla and beat until thick enough to spread.
